ASK COLOGNE FREED

GERMAN NOTE MAKES PROTEST

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—A German note to the allies, made public today, protests emphatically against prolongation of occupation of the Cologne area.

The note, which is a reply to one delivered by Lord D'Abernon on behalf of the allied ambassadors last week, declares Germany is fully disarmed, in compliance with the Versailles treaty. It demands that the allied control commission which investigated disarmament in Germany report immediately and suggests negotiations on details of the report.

The allies informed Germany that because the control commission had not reported satisfactory disarmament, Cologne would not be evacuated by January 10, as required by the treaty.

The Cologne zone is an important and integral part of Germany, retention of which by the allies might prove degratory to fulfillment of the Dawes plan, the note warns.

NEGRO PREVENTS A JAIL DELIVERY

Oscar Hudspeth, Colored, Charged With First Degree Murder, Warns Officers—Five in the Plot.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Jan. 7.—Oscar Hudspeth negro awaiting trial for first degree murder, averted a wholesale jail delivery at the Richardson county jail Tuesday night it was revealed this noon by Deputy Sheriff Al Smith. Motioning Smith over to his corner when the deputy brought the prisoners' meals at 7 o'clock Hudspeth whispered that the lock of the cage in which he and five others were confined had been broken off by one of the prisoners with a gas pipe. Another minute and all of the prisoners would have been out of the cage with only the outer door barring their liberty.

It has been the plan Hudspeth told Smith to lie in wait for the deputy and then attack him with gas pipe, used by the prisoners as a poker when he came with the evening meal. According to Hudspeth, Earl Hunt, serving a thirty-day sentence for theft of an overcoat who was outside of the cage, was the man who broke the lock.

Two others were in the cell outside of the cage but were not in on the plot, Smith said. Investigation revealed that the jail breaking plot was hatched by Fred Brown, Fess Cullis and Joe Sylvesto awaiting trial for highway robbery.

Hudspeth was last week bound over to the district court on first degree murder charge for the slaying of Lawrence Nelson another negro, in a quarrel over a woman. Five men have been named in the plot and they will probably be given a bread and water ration for awhile, Smith said.

MADE HOME IN THE WATER

Salt Lake City Man Submerged Most of Time for Three Months in Warm Spring.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 7.—For three months K. N. Jenson has practically lived in a bed of warm water in a tunnel near here, he admitted to police today. Jensen was found partially submerged in the warm water stream that flows from a hot spring to the Municipal bath house thru a tunnel three feet high.

Police at first believed Jensen was dead. His head was above the stream of water that flowed over his body. An opening in the roof of the tunnel admitted air and light.

But Jensen was only asleep and on being awakened explained to police that he had lived in the shallow water for nearly three months going out occasionally to forage food.

He said he had selected the tunnel as a home because the water kept him warm and he was able to rest comfortably and undisturbed.

PASS AGRICULTURE BILL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The senate today passed the agricultural bill carrying $124,726,478 an increase of $263,000 over the amount appropriated by the house.

Conquer Your Own Town.

In a discussion entitled "How Can I Help My Boy Get Started," Bruce Barton gives counsel in Good Housekeeping to the youth who thinks he can do better in New Work city than in his own town. In his article, which can be found in full in November Good Housekeeping, the writer tells for the benefit of young men his experience with a lad he met in another city who felt himself called to the metropolis.

"It must be great to live in New York and meet so many interesting people," the boy said to him, "Do you think I ought to go to New York?

"No," I answered.

His face fell. "Why not?"

"Because New York is full of chaps like you who have never done anything and for the most part they lead very lonesome lives. You don't suppose these so-called 'interesting' people would have any interest in you, do you? Interesting people like interesting people. Success has no time for failures."

It was a shot between the eyes. He was silent for a full minute. His jaw set; it looked more than ever like his father's jaw.

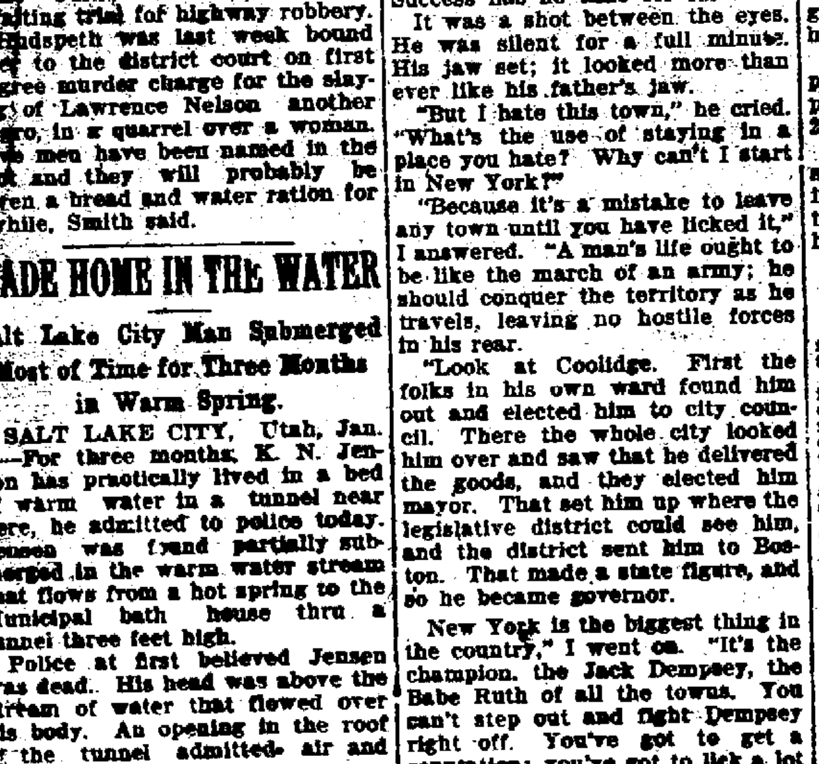

"But I hate this town," he cried. "What's the use of staying in a place you hate? Why can't I start in New York?"

"Because it's a mistake to leave any town until you have licked it," I answered. "A man's life ought to be like the march of an army; he should conquer the territory as he travels, leaving no hostile forces in his rear.

"Look at Coolidge. First the folks in his own ward found him out and elected him to city council. There the whole city looked him over and saw that he delivered the goods, and they elected him mayor. That set him up where the legislative district could see him, and the district sent him to Boston. That made a state figure, and so he became governor.

New York is the biggest thing in the country," I went on. "It's the champion, the Jack Dempsey, the Babe Ruth of all the towns. You can't step out and fight Dempsey right off. You've got to get a reputation; you've got to lick a lot of little fellows first. The place for you to start is here, in a town you don't like."

FOOTBALL STAR WORKS IN BEAUTY PARLOR

Football critics expect great things next year of Percy Rhyne, center of the University of Georgia freshman eleven. He is considered one of the hardest plunging and all around hardiest playing linesmen in the south and it is predicted that he will develop into one of the greatest centers Georgia has ever known. Rhyne is paying his way thru college by working in a beauty parlor, but none of the Georgia students joke him about the nature of his work.

SURVIVALS OF SALOON DAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Drinking congressmen are survivals of the old saloon days, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, declared in a harsh denunciation of liquor parties in official Washington today.

Congress cannot expect the people to respect the laws it passes when the law makers themselves and officials who enforce them are violators, Wheeler said in commenting on the divorce action brought by Congressman Frank Scott of Michigan against his wife.

Wheeler's statement follows:

"The situation is a nasty one. It reveals a side of life which is a product of the old saloon days. Several of the congressmen have specifically denied the statement of Mrs. Scott concerning their alleged violations of the law. I am sure that there is not even a substantial minority of congress who are violating the law, but there is no excuse for even a private citizen, much less a public official who takes an oath of office to support the constitution defying it.

"These violations of the law are the result in most instances, of an alcohol habit fastened upon the people when we had 177,790 saloons legalized by the government for pay to sell the liquor which made men and women alcoholic habitues.

"It will take decades to free the nation from this vicious habit. It is not the result of the prohibition law, but the sloughing-off of a curse which was protected by the government for more than half a century. Education, publicity and better law enforcement will cure it.

"We cannot expect the people to have a wholesome respect for law if public officials whose duty it is to enforce the law, violate it. That is the reason why we have urged that the 800,000 federal employes be required to obey the law if they are to retain their positions with the government."

ENDORSE BILL OF JACOBSTEIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. — Cabinet officers today were almost unanimous in endorsing the proposal embodied in a bill introduced by Representative Meyer Jacobstein, New York, that cabinet members be permitted to appear personally on the floor of congress for questioning and debate.

President Coolidge approves the plan which is tantamount to providing the American government with a modified form of ministerial responsibility to the national legislature, such as prevails in Europe. There is little prospect of action on the measure at this session however.

Secretary Hughes, leading champion of the annivation, said "It ought to be possible for cabinet officers to take part in the debates of both houses on matters touching their departments, to give exact information and defend themselves against unjust attacks."

The proposal would serve to speed up legislation as well as prove mutually helpful to congress and the cabinet, in the opinion of Secretary of the Interior Work.

"It would put cabinet officers on their mettle," was the opinion of Secretary of Labor Davis. "I have always been an advocate of the idea which is a very good one."

Secretary of War Weeks who spoke from his long experience in congress and also as a departmental head, said "the proposal has merit but safeguards would have to be provided to prevent abuse of the privilege of interrogating cabinet officers."

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur was of the opinion that the present system was adequate.

Majority Leader Longworth in the house expressed his disapproval of the bil land said it would not be acted on at this session because it would cause too much debate and hold up more important legislation.

Thieves Have Secured $500,000 in Three Robberies.

Postal Officials Admit Wednesday That Theft Took Place Monday Night, Apparently Inside Job.

CHICAGO, Jan., 7.—Mail train robbers have secured a total of approximately $500,000 in three robberies of train No. 12, crack flier of the C. & N. W. railroad, postal officials revealed today. The robberies occurred during the past six months, the latest some time Monday night, while the train was on the way to Chicago from Omaha, Neb., officials stated.

All were "inside jobs," it was stated. The robbers entered the mail car with keys, it is indicated.

UNI TEACHER GUN VICTIM

MADISON, WIS., INSTRUCTOR SHOT BY LOVER.

After Seriously Wounding Lora Palmer in French House, F. X. Bernard Shoots and Kills Himself.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 7.—Maddened by a jealous love, F. X. Bernard, twenty-six, native Corsican, today shot and dangerously wounded Miss Lora Palmer, twenty-eight, University of Wisconsin instructor and French house chaperon, and a moment later killed himself.

A maid who had admitted Bernard to the French house, ten minutes earlier, heard the shots and ran into the parlor to find the lover dead and the young chaperon mortally wounded.

After he had shot Miss Palmer twice beneath the left lung, Bernard sent a bullet into his own brain.

The girl regained consciousness long enough to mumble the name of her assailant, while she was being taken to the general hospital.

The two had met at Hibbing, Minn., where Bernard was living and where Miss Palmer had gone to teach French following her graduation from the University of Wisconsin.

Bernard was her pupil and he took her place in the high school when Miss Palmer went to France to study on a French scholarship. He had fallen in love with her, but Miss Palmer's feelings toward him were nothing more than those of friendship, according to Prof. H. A. Smith, head of the university romance language department, in which Miss Palmer was an instructor.

The young woman took an active interest in his studies and recommended him for a position as instructor in French at the university, but he had no degree and his application was rejected. Three days ago he came to Madison and asked Professor Smith if he could finish his university work here and then obtain an instructorship. He had been a chemist with a mining company at Hibbing.

It is Professor Smith's belief that Bernard's real reason for seeking the position was his determination to be near Miss Palmer. He advised him however, to return to Hibbing.

Bernard had never been at the French house before, but it was well known there that he and Miss Palmer were corresponding.

Miss Palmer's home is in La

FARM FOLK INTERESTED

MEETINGS DRAW MANY OUT TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS.

Bad Roads May Prevent a New High Attendance Mark, But There Is No Lessening of Interest.

Taxis, street cars, automobiles and Fords were busy Wednesday morning carrying visitors to the winter meetings of Organized Agriculture at the College of Agriculture.

The attendance was far in excess of the first day, altho it will probably not reach the high mark of some former years, according to Dean Burnett of the college. The local attendance is practically the same, but bad weather has made it impossible to travel for long distances except by train, and many of the farmers will not leave their stock, after these storms. However the attendance is good and college authorities are satisfied with the meetings.

The Crop Growers association held a meeting in the morning with over one hundred present. The demonstrations of members of boys and girls clubs was a special feature.

The champion Bushnell potato club, composed of Alice Forsling and Arnold Gadekin gave a demonstration on potatoes. This was follow by a grain grading demonstration by Arthur Reitter and Alden Colbert of the Eagle corn club.

F. D. Keim of the agriculture college reported the result of the 1924 corn yield and William Henderson of Benkelman talked on alfalfa seed production in Nebraska, which was followed by a general discussion.

The live stock breeders had a much larger attendance at their meeting Wednesday than was present at either of yesterday's meetings, over 200 being present to hear the program on swine.

"Uncle" Sam McKelvie, veteran swine breeder of Fairfield, Neb., and father of Ex-Governor S. R. McKelvie, was present and presided at the meeting.

H. C. Filley of the agricultural college talked on "The Trend of Hog Production." W. J. Loeffel, also of the agricultural college, discussed pasture values.

Dr. A. H. Francis of the U. S. bureau of animal industry discussed the prevention of pig troubles.

Oscar Schlictman of Edgar, told how he raised an average of eight pigs to the sow. Joseph Eutsler of Sumner talked on "What Sanitation Did For Me."

Harry Knabe, Nehawka, told how he handled his grand champion carload of barrows.

At 11:30 o'clock a live stock judging contest was held with $40 and ten tickets to the live stock breeder's banquet offered as prizes.

About thirty were present to hear the program of the Nebraska state horticultural society in the morning.

President Grove M. Porter of Nebraska City gave the opening address. F. S. Merrill of Columbia, Mo., talked on "Pruning as a Factor in Apple Production" and Prof. B. S. Pickett, chief of horticulture and forestry at Ames, Ia., discussed the outlook for fruit growing, particularly apples in the Missouri river section.

A business meeting closed the program of the morning.

Dean E. A. Burnett of the college of agriculture opened the dairymen's meeting with an address of welcome.

The chairman of the agricultural committee of the Lincoln chamber of commerce extended an invitation to the dairy men to visit the chamber of commerce rooms and to use them for committee meetings at any time.

President Swartzley of Riverdale spoke for a few minutes and then introduced Frank Astroth, field representative of the American Jersey cattle club, who talked on "What Can a Good Sire Do?" About fifty people were present.

The farm bureau federation was

Governor Bryan's budget message is to be delivered by the governor's secretary F. C. Radke, county judge-elect of Johnson county. In presenting the message by proxy Governor Bryan hopes to save his best energies for his message as retiring governor, which will be delivered in person before the joint convention Thursday afternoon. Secretary Radke has served as a member of the house of representatives and the constitutional convention. He is a graduate of the university college of law and has practiced law at Harlington and Tecumseh, the latter now being his home

FINDS JEWELS

NEIL M. JUDD.

A marvelous necklace of 2,500 topaz beads, said to be more than 1,000 years old, was discovered by Neil M. Judd, director of an exploration expedition, in ancient Indian ruins at Pueblo, New Mexico. Four corresponding ear pendants also were found. The value of the jewels is said to be great and the workmanship of their settings rare.

MANY FROM FAR AWAY

WOMAN'S MEETING BRINGS OUT VARIED REPORTS.

Box Luncheon Followed the Morning Meeting Where the Discussion of Home Matters Was Continued.

A feature at the home economics meetings is the nursery for children. Miss Ruth Staples, instructor at the home management house, has charge. It is in the girls' gymnasium. This is planned to appeal to Lincoln mothers who would like to attend the meetings and have stayed away because of their children.

More than two hundred women had been registered before noon Wednesday for the home economics session in connection with the meetings of organized agriculture. The morning was devoted chiefly to reports of the 1924 project work in the various counties. Miss Mary Ellen Brown of the agricultural extension service, presided. Thirty farm bureau delegates, some of whom represented more than one county, were seated on the platform and each contributed a report when called upon by the chairman. All parts of the state were represented, delegates being present from as far distant as Scottsbluff and Kimball counties on the extreme west.

The reports showed a wide diversity of interests in all features of interest in home-making or improvement of rural conditions of living. Miss Brown spoke of the inability of the demonstration agents to make return visits as often as desired, and of the need of more county agents. An especially large number of clubs and projects were reported for Scottsbluff county, where a home agent and home demonstration agent are both employed.

The three counties of Valley, Garfield and Loup have been working together. The delegate told of a four-days millinery school put on, for which local merchants furnished a supply of materials free, the hats afterwards being put on exhibition at the village stores. People went in crowds from all around the country to see the display of home-made hats.

The making of dress forms, millinery, the remaking of clothing are projects reported as popular in all parts of the state. A delegate reported that a merchant in one town declared he had not sold a whole bolt of cloth since the women acquired a mania for making-over.

In Webster county, a club which had taken a course in home care for the sick reported the purchase of complete equipment for care of the sick to be passed around in the county wherever needed.

All sorts of clubs for boys and girls, study clubs, and features for

FIRE ALARMS WEDNESDAY

No Serious Blazes Resulted Out of Four Calls Answered.

Firemen were summoned to three addresses up to noon Wednesday, but each blaze was checked before damage resulted. At the home of Emery J. Parrish, 405 South Twenty-eighth, a spark from the chimney ignited the roof at 1:0 a. m. A smoky pan at the American restaurant 137 North Twelfth, caused much concern for a time but no damage. At the Country club late Tuesday night six gallons of chemical applied by firemen quenched the flame in a smoking pit below the lounge fireplace.

KEEPING TAB ON M'MULLEN

CONSTITUENTS ARE AWAITING HIS ARRIVAL.

Ancient Story of Failure of His Tailor Is Circulated—Another Guess on State Tax Commissioner.

Governor-elect McMullen was expected to arrive in Lincoln at noon Wednesday. Reports from Beatrice stated that he would probably leave his home in a car sometime during the forenoon. One rumor had it that he would arrive in Lincoln at 1 o'clock and go direct to the mansion provided for him by the state. At that hour he had not arrived. All byways and highways were being watched by eager constitutents.

The favorite story usually told on incoming governors to the effect that he was delayed because his tailor had not finished a new suit for him was circulated at the capitol Wednesday. The friends of the governor-elect denied the tale and asserted that the chief executive-to-be was not fastidious in his dress and that he had more than one suit quite proper for a particular business man to wear.

"I am just guessing," said a state house man, "that the new governor will appoint as state tax commissioner a man who is quite well off and who has been much interested in taxation legislation. He was father of the intangible tax law. I am guessing he will appoint C. B. Anderson of Lincoln, former state senator from Lancaster county. This is only a guess."

Harry Scott of Lincoln has been the choice of all prophets who have tried their powers on state tax commissioner.

State Land Commissioner Dan Swanson who has checked in and checked out several governors who have lived in the governor's mansion is not functioning just now. Since reports indicated that the governor alone is custodian of the capitol and mansion and all other property of the state not under the care of any particular board, Mr. Swanson has ceased to assume control of the mansion. No one has asked him to compare his former inventory of property at the mansion with the property now there, and Governor Bryan has moved out and a new governor is about to move in. Formerly the board of educational lands and funds of which Mr. Swanson is secretary, was custodian of the capitol and mansion and state fair grounds. This authority was repealed by the code law in 1919.

NELLIE ROSS AS GOVERNOR

DEMANDS RETURN OF ONE NEBRASKA CITIZEN.

Asks Governor Bryan to Extradite William Pauley on Charge of Selling Mortgaged Property.

The first requisition issued by Mrs. Ross, governor of Wyoming, dated January 6 is a request directed to Governor Bryan asking him to issue a warrant which will serve as authority for the sheriff of Wyoming to take William Pauley beyond the confines of the state of Nebraska to stand trial in Wyoming on the charge of disposing of mortgaged property.

Governor Bryan will act upon the request when Attorney General Spillman approves the requisition as to legality. The petition filed with the governor of Wyoming by the complaining county attorney is directed to "His Excellency, Nellie T. Ross."

Attorney General Spillman expressed the opinion that this is one of the cases where the masculine embraces the feminine. He does not believe a court would turn down such a petition. The petition proved to be one of the old printed forms used in Wyoming before that state had a woman governor.

It is alleged in the complaint that William Pauley and another man jointly mortgaged oats to the Union Trust company of Lingle, Wyoming, and that Pauley last September directed John Burbank to haul some of the grain to the Wyoming elevator company at Lingle and sold the load for $60.55, without the consent of the trust company and that he has since in payment was in default delivered to Pauley. The accused was arrested and is being held at the city of Scottsbluff, Neb.

VETERAN HIKER

HENRY STEWART.

Henry Stewart, seventy-four years old, has completed a series of hikes in the Americas, Europe and Africa, during which he walked 100,000 miles, and now is preparing for another "stroll" of 4,000 miles from Baltimore to San Diego. Admitting he is one of the most proficient exponents of the good old American army game of "picking 'em up and laying 'em down," Stewart declares he is the official marcher for the San Diego exposition and says he is to receive a purse of $100,000 subscribed by the exposition committee.

CURTAIN IN CASE LIFTED

CHIEF JUSTICE OLSON TENACIOUS IN PURPOSE.

Now Says He Suspects Something Wrong in Death of His Brother, a Doctor, Following Shepherd's Visit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The curtain, almost down on the McClintock death drama, has been yanked up again by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, who insists that his brother's death also be investigated.

Olso said he was not satisfied with the investigation into the death of William McClintock, "millionaire orphan." He wants the case continued and the body of his brother, Dr. Oscar Olson exhumed and examined for poison. Dr. Olson died about three years ago.

The latter's death followed a visit by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Shepherd, foster parents of McClintock, Olson stated at what was to hav been the final hearing of the McClintock case. The justice also stated he was suspicious of the manner of the death of the mother of young McClintock.

After stating that the Olson family had known Billy McClintock's mother since her childhood and that Dr. Olson had acted as medical adviser to the McClintocks, the justice said:

"Billy visited my brother two days before my brother died. Dr. Olson was then recovering from a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning. He was declared out of danger. The next day after Billy had visited with Dr Olson for several hours, the Shepherds called for the first time in six years. They brought my brother fruit and asked if Billy had been talking with my brother the day before.

"I may add here that my brother had often told Billy that he should assume control of his own affairs as soon as possible. At the time of my brother's death, as they were when Billy died, the Shepherds were living off Billy's money, in his home and eating his food.

"The Shepherds remained at my brother's home for several hours and just before they left Mr. Shepherd was in the room with my brother alone, with the door almost closed, for some moments.

"The doctor's death occurred the day after Shepherd had called on him. The doctor became rapidly worse after the visit—we even feared suicide at the time from poisoning, because his illness had not warranted such a change.

"I do not know what we will find in my brother's body. Three years is a long time and I will not be satisfied until an examination is made."

Olso pointed out that Mrs. McClintock died shortly after the Shepherds joined her. He said the burial was so hurried that he refused to act as a pallbearer.

BRYAN RECOMMENDS FIVE MILLION CUT

Million and Half a Year Less For Successor Than He Spent.

BAN UPON NEW BUILDINGS

None Approved for University and Normals.

RETIRING GOVERNOR WRITES

Tells Legislators Strictest Economy Must Be Observed and That No Salary Raises Should Be Allowed.

By slashing approximately four million dollars off the requests for more money by the state university, the state normal board and the state board of control, Governo. Bryan, whose swan song as chief executive is to be sung Thursday afternoon brings down his recommended appropriations to a total of $17,223,000 for the biennium ginning July 1st, 1925. The total cut is almost five millions. His budget carrying these figures was submitted Tuesday afternoon to the state legislature. Accompanying figures show it cost nearly $10,000,000 to run the government for the first year of his administration, but he thinks his successor should get along on seventeen millions for his two years or a million and a half less.

The total appropriations asked for by the departments of the state government were about as two years ago, a total as he puts it, of $22,061,304, not including anything for the new capitol. In his regular message he will recommend a further appropriation for that building, including furniture and finishings.

The big cuts made by the governor are in the requests of the state board of regents, the state normal board, the state board of control and the state board of agriculture. Last year the university got $6,230,000; this year it asked for $7,643,000 and the governor says it should have no more than $5,698,000, or half a million less than two years ago.

The regent's recommendations are cut as follows: Agricultural extension, $30,000; general maintenance, $695,000; new buildings, $1,200,000; legislative reference bureau $23,500, eliminated.

The state normal board's recommendations are sliced by these sums: Maintenance, Chadron, $75,000; maintenance, Kearney, $130,000; maintenance, Peru, $56,000; maintenance Wayne, $175,000; new buildings $600,000. The governor's recommendations were mainly the appropriations of two years ago, which the board said were too small because of growth of attendance. The total appropriations two years ago for normal schools were $1,385,000. The governor would cut the total to $1,325,000, the difference being in cash funds. The board asked for $2,353,000.

The state board of control had a total two years ago of $4,321,000, including several new buildings, and the governor says that it ought to get along for the next two years on $3,841,000. It asked for $5,171,000 for the next two years. The board asked for a new building of one sort or another or extensive repairs at nearly every one of the eighteen state institutions, but the governor turns thumbs down on all of these recommendations.

In dealing with the recommendations of the state board of control the governor either cut down or eliminated items for repairs, and cuts out altogether requests made as follows: New buildings, land and equipment at Beatrice feebleminded institution, $71,000; at Geneva girls' industrial school, new building to house inmates and a kitchen annex, $60,000; at soldiers' home at Burkett, store building and repairs, $15,000; at Hastings asylum for insane, new buildings and repairs, $130,000; at Kearney tuberculosis hospital, general equipment, repairs, tunnels, new building $29,000; Lincoln asylum for insane, receiving building, new kitchen building and porch for C building, $235,000, at Lincoln orthopedic hospital, new hospital unit, $160,000, Milford home for women, extensions and betterments, $5,000, at Milford soldiers' home, remodeling old barracks, light plant boiler and equipment, $56,000 Nebraska City, school for blind, electric rewiring and repairs, $5,000, Norfolk insane asylum, new building, remodeling, sewage disposal plant and land, $167,000, Omaha school for deaf, industrial

The oil men will be asked to come to Washington early in February to discuss present rapid depletion of the nation's oil reserves with the board which consists of Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of Interior Work and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Secretary Work was elected chairman of the board and a sub-committee of federal officials was appointed to help in devising a national policy for the conservation of oil and gas resources.

CROW WILL FILE CHARGE

ADAMS ATTORNEY TALKS ABOUT MOORE MURDER.

Says Formal Complaint Will Be Placed Against Donald Ringer When He Is Brought Back.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 7.—Donald Ringer, 21, will be formally charged with the murder of Carl Moore, auto salesman, who disappeared from Hastings on October 16, and whose body was found on November 1 in a plum thicket near Roseland, County Attorney Crow said today.

Ringer is now en route to Hastings in custody of Chief W. W. Branagan, who has been scouring five state, Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi and Texas, for the past 57 days in search of Ringer and his friend, George Bender, who was also wanted.

Bender has not been found yet.

Because of the fear of possible violence, the time of Ringer's arrival in Hastings is being kept secret. Authorities learned on the day following Moore's disappearance that two men had left Hastings at about the same time. The hammer which was found near Moore's body was partially identified as one missing from the home of Ringer's stepfather, Harvey Beckner, of this city.

Moore left Hastings in company with two men, strangers at the garage where he was employed, telling fellow workers that he was going to Roseland to see a prospective customer. When he failed to return fear of foul play led thousands of people from Hastings and Adams county to join in the search for his body, which was finally found by chance by the Roseland superintendent of schools, while out hunting.

PICTURE NOT A TRUE ONE

CONGRESSMAN SCOTT DEPLORES REVELATIONS.

Declares Disclosures of Wife in Divorce Suit of Activities of Congressional Set Are False.

DETROIT, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Edna James Scott, wife of Congressman Frank D. Scott and central figure in the divorce scandal that was adjourned at Alpena, Mich., yesterday was to arrive here this morning for a few days' rest before going to Washington and New York to aid in taking depositions in her behalf.

Weary and worn but promising that the fight has just started, Mrs. Scott boarded a train at Alpena last evening after issuing an informal statement declaring "she would tell everything on Washington society and its night life."

Scott remained at his Alpena home where he expected to spend the next few days in rest before returning to his post at Washington.

"The whole affair has been indescribably shocking to me," Scott said last night. "The picture that has been drawn of the life of the average congressman who goes to Washington to serve his constituents as best he may, is entirely out of reason. Bizarre parties and the like is not the rule in congressional circles. Neither is gambling the chief vocation of congressmen. Nor are they given to drinking of liquors against the Volstead act on which the majority voted."

Scott said the life he and his wife led at Washington was "typical of the average congressman's life until we moved to the Wardman Park hotel."

During the first eight years of married life in Washington while they were associates of the congressional group there was no mention of drinking parties, Scott said.

"As a matter of fact, there were no drinking parties then nor are there any now," said Scott.

"I feel it is manifestly unfair for her to drag in and besmirch the reputations of the entire congressional membership and their families and I do not hesitate to characterize the entire proceedings as dastardly and cowardly.

"In fiendish malice towards me she attempted to brand every one and if court actions do not follow it will be solely due to the charitable minds of those accused."

UNCONSCIOUS 210 HOURS

Omaha Girl of Eight Suffers From Fractured Skull Over Week Ago.

OMAHA, Jan. 7.—Lystra Thomsen, eight-year-old school girl, who suffered a fractured skull when struck by an automobile here more than a week ago, was believed by local physicians to have set a new record for children when she completed 212 hours of unconsciousness at noon today.

Many adults have exceeded this record, but physicians here say they are unable to find records of any child remaining unconscious so long with a fractured skull.

Physicians are confident that the girl will recover. Her left side, which has been paralyzed since the accident was responding to treatment today. At one time this morning she grasped her father's hand with her left hand and gripped it tightly, doctors said.

Since Saturday, Lystra has been assimilating liquid foods.

SUCCESSOR OF M'KENNA

HARLAN F. STONE.

Attorney General Harlan F. Stone was nominated to succeed Associate Justice McKenna who resigned.

The resignation of Justice McKenna deprives the Pacific coast of representation in the membership of the court.

Solicitor General Beck will automatically become acting attorney general upon Mr. Stone's retirement. The president has given no indication of his intentions with respect to filling the vacancy permanently, but a number of names were suggested in other circles, including those of Mr. Beck, Secretary Wilbur, Federal District Judge Dietrich of Idaho, Chief Justice Arthur P. Your Problems

By Mary Gordon

Dear Mary Gordon: I am a young man just finishing high school and am considered very popular in our wild set. We have a big car that is always at my disposal for any parties. The other nite when coming home from one of our booze fests I had a dispute with one of the girls of the party when the rest of the carload took sides with her, I made them all get out and walk home. Not being quite myself at the time and neither were they I feel rather foolish about it and would like to know how I can make amends.

I would feel differently about it if the girls cared more for the boy than the good time. But all girls want seven dates a week and none of them parlor dates. They'll go with a guy till he's broke and then ditch him. Now don't write back and tell me to date with nicer girls (so called) because I have. These demure old fashioned girls are the bunk for they are wilder and more greedy than the rest when they finally do get out. They all absorb hooch as if they had just come off the desert and they save their big meal for midnight. Yours for improvement in young women.—Louis K.

A. Apologize.

Dear Mary Gordon: I have a boy friend which I think is real nice and would like to know if it would be all right to ask him to come down. He never asks me for a date, but he always asked me to dance and sits down beside me at dances and parties and talks to me a long time. Do you think he is waiting for me to ask him.—Brown Eyes.

A. If you think he is too timid to ask for himself, you might do it.

Very Doubtful: I cannot see that you have any problem.

Maddy: The egg shampoo is applied as follows: Use hot wet towels, applied over a thin face towel, to the scalp. Wrap them around the back of the head and neck until the pores of the skin are opened and the scalp stimulated. Then apply the egg which has been mixed with a fork, but not beaten. Apply it to the scalp slowly, all the time massaging briskly until the egg is spread over the entire head. The egg has a tonic effect, as well as cleansing. The rubbing with the tips of the fingers should continue until the egg disappears. Again use an application of hot towels to drive in the egg, and follow it with the soap, which by this time is melted. Wipe off the first lather and apply the soution again. Wash the ends of the hair thoroly. For the third time, use the soap, then rinse thoroly with water containing the juice of the lemon, if you do not mind a mild bleach. Rinse again and again, gradually lowering the water in temperature. Put ten drops of oil of lavender in the last rinse-water and the hair will be elusively fragrant for several days.

A Daily Dozen for Gas Bills.

1. See that the burners are adjusted properly.
2. Clean the burner frequently by boiling in soda water and drying thoroly.
3. Flat bottomed utensils conserve heat.
4. Use the small burner for cooking cereals and stews.
5. Have food prepared and utensil at hand before lighting the burner.
6. When boiling point is reached lower the flame as low as possible to keep food boiling.
7. Turn off gas before removing food from stove.
8. Plan the oven meal on baking days when the oven is heated. This saves the ten to fifteen minutes of preheating.
9. Individual custards, gem cakes, etc., bake more quickly than the larger amounts.
10. Utilize the bottom of the doubleboiler for cooking eggs, etc., when the top part is steaming cereals and puddings.
11. Fill the teakettle with water and place on top of the oven when baking. It takes very little gas to heat this to boiling for washing dishes.
12. Learn to time the cooking of foods. Any food is better served as soon as cooked and gas is wasted by keeping food hot until ready to serve.

EARTH TREMOR RECORDED

Center of Disturbance Not Known as Tremors Obscured by Storm at Sea.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 7.—An earth tremor of 15 seconds' duration was recorded at the Harvard seismograph station beginning at 8:07 a. m. today, university authorities announced. The center of the disturbance was not known, it was said, as the preliminary tremors were obscured by certain vibrations believed to have been induced by a storm at sea.

The quake reported "very severe" in some places, was felt in Boston, Salem, Peabody, Somerville, Danvers, Revere and other eastern cities of Massachusetts, along the so-called north shore.

Reports from Revere indicated the shock may have been most severe there while at Somerville persons fled from houses.

SOLAR ECLIPSE APPROACH

To Be Greatest Since 1869 and Will Envelop Chicago in Inky Blackness.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The greatest solar eclipse since 1869 will envelop Chicago with an inky blackness, Saturday, January 24, authorities at the Yerkes observatory, University of Chicago, announced today.

When the sun rises at 7:11 a. m. it will be partially obscured by the moon, and nineteen-twentieths of the surface will be covered during a portion of the time.

Full illumination of the streets and buildings will be required, the savants stated. It will last until about 8 a. m.

Not more than half a dozen times since the Christian era began, has there been a total eclipse, and most of those occurred long before civilization touched Chicago, Director Edwin B. Frost declared. The last total eclipse occurred in 1806, and there will not be a recurrence for two centuries, he declares.

Regions near Chicago will be affected partially by the eclipse.

PYRAMID TEAS LATEST.

LONDON, (By mail)—Pyramid teas have been inaugurated here as a means of providing funds for the peoples' dispensary for sick animals of the poor. The procedure is to enlist the services of a number of volunteer hostesses, each of whom will invite six friends to tea. The guests of the original hostess each invite five guests. These each invite four, who, in turn each invite three. These three each invite two, and these each invite one. Everybody brings a shilling contribution to the funds. The result of each hostess' efforts should be nearly $500.

A SCRAMBLE FOR PLACES

HOUSE STANDING COMMITTEES ARE ON THE BLOCK.

Republicans to Shuffle Cards, Cut the Pack and Deal Out Smaller Spots to Those of Minority.

The republican committee on committees, J. C. Gilmore, chairman, has organized for business. It will shuffle the deck, cut and deal the cards. The democratic apportionment:

On committee having eleven members each, four democrats and seven republicans.

On committees of seven, three democrats and four republicans.

On committees of five, two democrats and three republicans.

The democrats had requested the privilege of distributing the few bits of fruit allotted to them. This was denied. If they get a chairmanship it will be accidental. Henry Bock, minority floor leader, said he could say a lot but might as well keep still.

The parent committee held a second meeting after Wednesday morning's regular session. Chairman Gilmore issued a request that all members submit committee preferences in the order preferred. It developed that this request had been generally complied with before it was made.

Members of the Lancaster county delegation are not making heavy demands. Representative Harrington is said to desire a place on the finance committee and also on the insurance committee. Altho he and Mr. Egger are the only second termers of the delegation, Harrington is not seeking a chairmanship.

Miss Sarah T. Muir, only woman member of the Lancaster group, is said to have her eyes on finance and education. J. Lloyd McMaster would like a chair in the room where the house judiciary meets. Monte Munn wants on the finance committee. J. F. Egger has his eye on roads and bridges. He does not want to see the money go out faster than it comes in. He also would like to return to the committee on state institutions.

Carl H. Becker, successor to I. W. Jacoby, presumably has a liking for agriculture.

While James A. Rodman, runner-up in the race for speakership has been mentioned in connection with judiciary, his friends say that out of respect to A. H. Byrum, he probably will not seek the chairmanship. They add that he is the logical man to head the finance committee. George Staats is named by many of the guessers as probable chairman of roads and bridges, Mr. Byrum as chairman of judiciary, W. M. Barbour as chairman of the irrigation committee. E. Preston Bailey of Carleton has been mentioned as possible head of the education group. George Dyvall of Omaha probably will land the chairmanship of cities and towns.

FREAK AVERTS A WRECK

Western Indiana Accommodation Train Crashes Into Flier Near Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—A freak of fate alone averted a slaughter here early today when a Western Indiana accommodation train crashed into the New York express crack Baltimore and Ohio flyer outside Chicago.

Only four persons were hurt. Two mail clerks were injured when the B. & O. mail car was hurled high in the air and thrown thru the Oakdale station, a flimsy wooden suburban depot. The fireman and engineer of the Western Indiana train were hurt, but not seriously.

The Baltimore and Ohio flyer had the green light to come on when Engineer George Campbell of Garrett, Ind., sighted the Western Indiana train speeding toward the crossing. Campbell opened the throttle in the hope of speeding his train out of danger. The Western Indiana locomotive plunged into the tender of Campbell's train, hurling the mail coach and a baggage car on to the depot.

If the crash had occurred three seconds later the Western Indiana locomotive would have plowed into the diner, which was filled with passengers.

Leo McCann, telegraph operator, at the Oakdale station, was buried under a mass of debris, as were L. E. Ruppert, Aldine, Ind., and Stanley Day, Tiffin, O., mail clerks.

The telegraph operator continued working his key and in fifteen minutes a wrecking crew was on the job. The first alarm was that 100 persons had been killed.

James B. Manes, engineer, and Albert Grabe, both of Chicago, are being held for questioning.

"Had the Western Indiana train hit the B. & O. a second later," Engineer Campbell of the New York express said today, "seventy-five people in the diner would have been crushed to death or maimed."

RULING ON GRANT APPEAL

Governor Small Expected to Determine During Day Fate of Chicago Youth.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Gov. Len Small is expected to rule some time today on the petition for another reprieve for Bernard Grant, "back of the yards" boy sentenced to hang January 16, in connection with the murder of a policeman.

Attorney J. J. McCarthy, representing groups interested in Grant's case, made a long distance call to Small at Springfield and asked commutation of sentence or an immediate reprieve. The present reprieve expires January 16.

Letters and telegrams of protest against hanging of the youth are coming in from all parts of the country. Practically all of them argue that if Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, millionaires, can get off with a jail sentence for a confessed murder, Grant, the penniless youth ought to be given the same brand of justice. Grant denies having had a hand in the murder.

PREDICT COOLER WEATHER

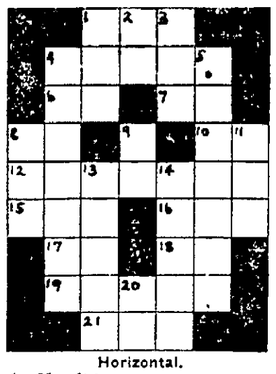

Altho Mercury Remains High in the Column Change Is Coming, Weather Bureau Says.

Altho the moderate weather that has prevailed in Nebraska during the past few days continued with higher temperatures Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the weather bureau issued the statement that a change was due here Wednesday and Thursday. Colder weather will rule in the eastern portion of the state it is predicted.

The thermometers set new records for warm weather during the early morning hours Wednesday when the lowest degree registered in Lincoln was 27 above. Other sections of the state reported high temperatures also.

At Omaha it was 30 above, at North Platte, 18 above and at Valentine 6 above.

REPUDIATES STATEMENT

RAY E. EATON DENIES ADMITTING MAIL THEFT.

Veteran Postal Clerk on Trial in Federal Court Says Statement Was Not Given Voluntarily.

Ray E. Eaton's written statement given to two postal inspectors does not constitute an admission of guilt, because it was not given voluntarily, his attorney told a federal jury Wednesday morning in his opening statement. Mr. Eaton is being tried for alleged opening of a letter not addressed to him, and taking of money therefrom. He is a veteran postal employe, being in his thirty-first year of service when he was apprehended last July 9.

The government's contention, as outlined to the jury by District Attorney Stewart, is that postal inspectors had been watching Mr. Eaton and that on July 9 they mailed two decoy letters, both addressed to Cincinnati, depositing them in the mail box at the Burlington station. They watched him collect the mail from the box, and later searched the pouch in which it should have gone forward on the train, and did not find it. They met Mr. Eaton on his way home from work at 7 that evening and asked him if he knew what had become of the letter. He said he did not, but turned out his pockets at their request, disclosing three dollar bills, identified by their numbers as those placed in one of the decoy letters, and a marked half dollar that had also been put in the letter. The five dollar bill and quarter they had put in the same letter were not found, and the inspector learned later that Mr. Eaton had loaned a $5 bill to one of the mail clerks at the depot.

Mr. Eaton then admitted his guilt and dictated a statement to one of the inspectors, which he read and signed, Mr. Stewart said. He said he had taken the money and destroyed the letter. This letter had been addressed to Mrs. Martha Smith, 118 Prospect, Cincinnati. The other decoy was addressed to Uncle Joe's Loan Office, Cincinnati.

Presence of the marked money in his pockets was given a different explanation by Lester Dibble, who with James A. Brown and H. N. Mattley is conducting the defense. He told the jury that as Mr. Eaton was starting to hand a mail pouch on to a train that had come in a little earlier than expected, a man met him and handed him three dollar bills and two half dollars, saying he would explain when they had more time, and then came back and gave him another dollar bill. Mr. Eaton, himself not a betting man, had been accustomed to hold the money for pools made up by the clerks on the scores of ball games, Mr. Dibble said, and when he showed his money to the inspectors he told them there should be a sheet of paper with it, showing who had contributed to the pool, but this he was unable to produce. The statement he then signed for the inspectors was not voluntary, it was said, and constituted no confession.

The defendant had been in the railway mail service for thirty years before going on duty at the terminal, Mr. Dibble pointed out, and had suffered numerous injuries in train wrecks, so that he was no longer able to do heavy work. He noticed a letter with money in it when he took the letters from the box, and also noticed that the envelop flap was torn. He dropped several letters while opening the door to the mail room, including the torn one, and was trying to repair it when he was handed some other work by one of the clerks.

Considerable time was expended in obtaining a jury, so many of the talesenmmen having been in the mail service themselves or having near relatives so employed. Inspector H. A. Roland was the first witness.

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, convicted of complicity in the poisoning of her husband, Willord Sweeten so that she might be free to love her pastor, the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, today started a 35-year career as laundress.

Rev. Mr. Hight, sentenced to life imprisonment, recently entered a state penitentiary in southern Illinois.

Regimental-Striped Scarfs.

Men's neckwear reminds one comically of the "orchestra of three pieces" composed of piano, stool and cover. It has but three primary patterns—the stripe, the plaid and the spaced or floating figure. Notwithstanding the myriads of designs you see in scarfs, all belong to one of these groups. This excludes solid colors which, having no contrasting effect, cannot, of course, be considered as a pattern. To such limited latitude in treatment is traceable the continuing vogue of designs like polka dots and regimental stripes which never come into fashion, because they never go out of fashion. They recur as regularly as the seasons.

Some wag has remarked that a critic is one who can tell somebody else how to do something he cannot do himself. Or, as Lord Byron put it, "Believe a woman, or an epitaph or any other thing that's false before you trust in critics." Hence, the present writer is reluctant to belittle the average man's taste in the choice of his scarfs. However, just dart the tail of your eye along a row of men, and you are driven to marvel how so little character and originality can be expressed in neckdress. Is this because most men have no taste or because they are too lazy to exercise it? Rather, may it not be due to the fact that a scarf or a couple of them are purchased hastily and haphazardly as disconnected articles of dress, instead of as units in the theme or hramony of the complete effect?

To avoid this fault, select your scarfs and shirts together, not separately, so that they will blend or offset engagingly and effectively. Always keep in mind the color of the suit each scarf is intended to accompany. Do not wear a striped scarf with a striped collar and a striped shirt, but if collar and shirt are striped see that the scarf bears a figured or all-over pattern to relieve the sameness. The spice of dress is contrast, not harmony.

The three scarfs reproduced here show bold regimental stripes of varying width, according to your taste. Just now, the broader the stripe, the smarter the effect and the brightest the colors are favored by young men. By regimental stripes one usually means stripes which are fac similes of the colors of well known British regiments. However, college, club and fraternity colors are just as much used and these have a more individual significance.

CLUE IN ALBRIGHT CASE

Another Ingersoll Watch Found Near Scene of Tragedy Said to Have Been Victim's.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Jan. 7.—Another Ingersoll watch, discolored and battered, found Monday by Mat Schaden, jr., of this city, near the scene of the tragedy which claimed the life of Carl Albright, of this city, December 22, near Plattsmouth, was indentified today by relativ esas also having been the property of Albright.

First reports of the case said that Albright's Ingersoll watch had been found near his body and that it had stopped at 8:20 p. m. Members of his family here told Sheriff Ryder today that Albright was carrying two watches when he left this city December 22—one of them was in his overcoat pocket.

Arthur Albright, of Omaha, a brother, is willing to waive prosecution of anyone who stripped the wrecked car, if they will tell a story which sheds light on the tragedy.

"THE GOLDEN BED"

THE SEASON'S GREATEST NOVEL OF MARRIAGE.

Produced as a Paramount picture by Cecil B. DeMille from a screen adaptation by Jeanie Macpherson.

BY WALLACE IRWIN

(Copyright.)

The door knob of the oval chamber rattled. She saw her sister, dressed for an occasion, descending the stair and taking her time about it. Margaret ran up the steps, past Flora Lee without a word and closed herself into her bedroom. Here she fought against the impulse that was always with her, a desire to cry her eyes out and lose her nerve and give up utterly.

But when she was ready for bed and the lights were out and her balcony windows open to the westward-faring moon, she did a thing which she had not done for many years. She knelt beside her bed and prayed. At first it was the Lord's Prayer, because that pure supplication, learned by rote, served as a password to a gate long closed to her. Then came her tears as she drooped with arms outstretched across the coverlid and asked brokenly:

"Father in Heaven, how can I? He loves me. He's so good, and I've given him my promise. But how can I, Father, when I don't love him? I've tried so hard. But I don't. I don't."

CHAPTER XLI.

Since Jo had been on duty the night before it was Admah who opened the Candy Holtz establishment next morning. He was earlier than usual, having slept feverishly, waking and tossing between dreams of an enchanted lady who came from the moon and lay against his shoulder, sighing in her sleep. In the practical light of morning her vanity case worried him. Perhaps he should have returned it the night before. Time and again he turned the foolish, expensive trifle in his hand, wondering what to do about it.

Had he cared less he would have thought nothing of running his Ford up to the Peake house, ringing at the big front door and handing the thing in to a servant with his compliments. But a memory of last night's magic aroused his self-consciousness. What if the Peake girl—the little one—should herself come to the door? Nothing could have been more suitable to his taste; he made up a number of handsome speeches with which to lay the precious square of silk in the hand which had once closed on his gift of peppermints. Then the idea would fill him with bashfulness. He couldn't do it gracefully, he felt. He knew so little about women—nice women. After his mother, Mabel Stek had been the nicest and she, events had proved, wasn't over nice.

Down at the store, as soon as he had scolded the colored roustabout for laying his dirty mop on a new showcase, he went to the telephone and called the Peake residence. A haughty African voice answered his request for Miss Peake.

"Which Miss Peake, suh?"

"Oh," Up to then Admah had given them the simplest possible classification; the big one and the little one. So he thought for an instant, then asked, "How many are there?"

"They're two, suh, I reckon," said the voice. It became immediately suspicious with the question, "Who is this talkin'?"

"I'm Mr. Holtz." Then because, an uncordial silence greeted his explanation, he went on, "I wanted to speak to her about a purse she dropped last night in my car."

"Oh," decided the voice, and grew warmer, "that would be Miss Flo Lee."

"Well—" he cleared his throat with the awfulness of his request, "—could I speak to her?"

"Mis Flo Lee? Naw, Mistah Holt, she ain't outa baid yet."

"Then I'll call her later, huh?

Come what would, Admah was determined that his conference over the lost property should be with the young lady herself. Like many another knight, he was anxious to claim a share of credit for his deed.

"She mos' ginerally gits up 'bout 'leven o'clock, sub," explained the voice.

"I'll call her then," persisted Admah and hung up the receiver, wondering vaguely at the customs and habits of the aristocracy.

Promptly at eleven—he had laid his dollar watch on the counter in order to keep close track of the time—he went again to the telephone and asked for the Peake number. Because he was in total ignorance of what had transpired behind the Peake's ground-glass door the previous night, how the little one had kissed her noble fiancee, then snapped her fingers under his nose with a boast that she associated with hooligans and could show him a few of her friends that would make his hair curl, Admah was not prepared for the surprise that greeted him that morning.

This time he had no difficulty in speaking to Miss Flora Lee.

"Oh, hello, Candy Holtz!" she cried in a tone of sweet familiarity.

"Good mawnin' ma'am," began Admah, and rummaged his poor mind for a graceful way to continue the conversation.

"I hope you didn't catch cold lending me your coat and everything. I was real worried about you." This in her most wooing tones.

"Gosh, no," he mumbled, and was at once ashamed of the inelegance "I'm right tough, ma'am—I mean to say—"Stalled like his Ford on a bad road, he floundered and stopped.

"I never saw anything so sweet in my life," she assured him, wherefore he took heart to go on.

"Say, Miss Peake. I got something of yours. I reckon you thought maybe I'd skipped away with it."

"How could you think of such a thing?" Her voice mellowed him like the drunkard's first glass after a night's debauch.

"Well, I've been totin' it round in my pocket——" He failed to mention the article because he wasn't sure of its name.

"Oh, my vanity case!" she cried, enraptured. "How sweet of you."

"Not at all, ma'am. I was only wonderin' should I send it round to you or would you stop in at the store——"

"Oh." Just an instant to consider, then the invitation which stopped the beating of his heart. "If it isn't too much trouble, couldn't you bring it round? I'll be here all afternoon. Suppose you come in to tea."

"I—I should be right glad to," he responded so faintly that he wondered if she heard.

"That's awfully nice of you. Then we'll see you at four, Mr. Holtz?"

Maybe he replied to this. He was never sure. A little later he heard himself called by name and found Jo at his elbow, complaining that he could never use the telephone since Ad got chawin' the rag with the dames.

Only vaguely did Admah hear these reproaches. For a space of time he moved about in a dream, serving shadowy customers, weighing out phantom chucks of candy, answering questions which, as far as he understood them, might have been spirit-tappings. She had asked him to tea. Tea at the Peakes'. Tea with the young Diana, sipping out of a golden cup, bathing him in the liquid beauty of her eyes. Tea.

He didn't care for tea, not particularly. He always took coffee for breakfast and only accepted tea as a sort of medicine when he had a headache. But rich folks liked it. He had read about it in the novels of Mrs. Humphrey Ward which Myrtle borrowed from a branch library. Over the counter Admah racked his brains for some recollection of how folks arrayed themselves for the highly literary rite. Dress suits? Probably not; at the Hamilton hotel where he had, up to then, received his social training, he noticed that only waiters wore dress suits in the daytime. A stovepipe hat, maybe, and a longtailed coat like a nigger preacher. . .

He settled this point in the most practical way possible. When Jo's back was turned Admah walked out of the store without so much as a by-your-leave and sought the establishment of Samuel Glick & Sons who, by their own advertised admission, were the leading clothiers of the state. Monty Fernback, who played bowls at Palfer's was a salesman at Glick's. Monty was the handsomest dresser in the Live Wires club, and before he rolled the ball he always removed the rings from his soft right hand.

With one idea in his fevered mind Admah charged so recklessly thru the Grand avenue traffic that a policeman stopped him with a polite but firm, "Cahful thar, Mister Holtz!" Ordinarily the deference would have flattered his pride. But his thoughts were too busy to receive outward impressions. Tea at the Peakes'. The little one—what was her regular name? Flo Lee. The nigger at the phone had said it. Flo Lee. He put the name on his rosary and said it over and over. Funny how they'd taken a notion to each other. . . . She'd gone out of her way to be friendly. He wondered if he really had something about him that appealed to girls. The swells sometimes took up with his kind. There was the case of young Carter and Mabel Stek, for instance. Flo Lee. She was engaged to that foreigner with the long name. He raked his memory, trying to recall the newspaper account of her engagement. . . . This brought on a disagreeable train of thought. If she was engaged to that Spigotty count what right had Flo Lee to take moonlight rides with her head on Admah Holtz's shoulder? Crossing the sidewalk toward Glick & Son's dressy show window Admah laid his hand on the sleeve which her lovely hair had brushed last night. May be she wasn't the right sort of girl. But like many another one, caught in the trap of Flora Lee Peake, he had reached the point where he ceased to care about that. . .

At the door of Glick & Sons a natty person in blue serge stepped forward and fondled his right hand.

"Hello, Ad!" exclaimed Monty Fernback. "You've certainly been a stranger round hya! Lookin' for a nice line of fall suitings?"

"I reckon so," said Admah, and glanced shyly across rows of tables, piled with diversified apparel. "I just dropped in, wonderin' if you could rig me out in somethin' nice to wear to a tea party."

CHAPTER XLII.

Shortly after the telephone conversation that weighed so little on Flora Lee's time and conscience San Pilar sent his peace offering in the form of orchids and one of his brief, pleasant notes to remind her that he was to lunch with her at half past one. Carlos was lavish with such reminders as were others who followed Flora Lee's broken trail.

A little after twelve, when she began dressing to receive her lord-prospective, her mind retained a more or less definite program for the day. She had asked that candy man in at four; that much was clear enough. What she was to do with him was another matter; that would come, she felt, upon the wings of inspiration. Already she was beginning to relent her mischievous plan—Carlos' orchids and his pretty note had cooled her desire for revenge. But the candy man would serve as a lesson to Bunny who must be taught not to do it again. Yes, the candy man could be made use of in some way.

Her wandering mind wavered; first she was sorry she had asked the candy man at all, then she was sorry she hadn't made a job of it and asked him in to lunch. It would have been delicious to watch poor Bunny's face when her strange guest attacked the asparagus with his knife. The picture, combined with thoughts of things she might say to stir the oddly matched rivals, tickled her to such a flurry of laughter that old Linda, who had been waiting half an hour to put her into her dress, lost her temper and threatened, not definitely but volubly. Flora Lee let Candy Holtz go glimmering into the realm of romantic impossibilities. She turned her attention to San Pilar and what he had to offer. In a fortnight she would be off for Europe with a coronet on her luggage and a right to do what she pleased, with Bunny's consent, of course. But she had learned to manage Bunny.

She had waited and played the game until she got just what she wanted. Money and position and a chance to get away. The Peakes, as a family, were losing their magnificence. They were borrowing feathers with which to deck their pride just a little longer; long enough to put Flora Lee on an ocean liner, and away on her foreign adventures. . . After that the deluge of bills and foreclosures. Well, she thought with characteristic sophistry, when she was off their hands they would be free of their most expensive responsibility . . . She was tired of that atmosphere of impending doom; her grandfather shut away like a harmless lunatic; her father growing more hateful and pale and silent every day; Roland swaggering in with preposterous schemes for the restoration of their fortunes. . . . Roland married and living on a precarious allowance, was taking on the airs of a family head to whom Peg and Flora Lee must defer. Poor Peg. Of all the life she was about to leave Flora Lee regretted but two things, the companionship of her sister and the suave luxury of the Italian bedroom which she had inherited from her mother. . .

To Women Who Can't Buy a Dress "Every Day"

In the purchase of apparel many women have only to study their caprices, but the women whose means are limited must be ASSURED that the model or the style of a garment is PERMANENT for the season in which she buys it.

Such a woman cannot afford to be misled by a style that is a fad of the moment. Her IMPERATIVE NEED is clothes whose lines are in HARMONY with the SPIRIT of the season's MODES.

This means, of course, that the woman of limited means must depend very much on the judgment of the store to guide and to supplement her individual choice. And THIS is to say that the judgment of THIS STORE can be depended upon. BRYAN RECOMMENDS FIVE MILLION CUT school building, $60,000; at Kearney, boys' industrial school, sewer extensions, barn and repairs, $22,000; at York women's reformatory, new ward building, new kitchen and dining room, $80,000.

The state penitentiary gets $50,000 for a new cellhouse, but its request for a new $100,000 power unit is denied.

Cuts Down Fair Board.

Similar cavalier treatment is accorded the recommendations of the state board of agriculture, which has charge of the state fair. It desired $20,000 for premiums and gets $4,000; and the governor cuts out $60,000 for maintenance and storm sewers entirely and also the $200,000 proposed combination boys and girls club building and horse barn. It asked for a total of $38,000 and gets $35,300.

The state railway commission, another pet aversion of the governor, is recommended for $85,000, what he recommended two years ago. The legislature raised it to $125,000 and the commission asked this time for $143,000. The cuts are in salaries and wages and extra help.

The supreme court's request for a $13,000 increase is turned down, as also was that of the state superintendent for $28,000 more, the military department for $56,000 more, board of vocational education for $50,000, the state historical society for $8,000 more, and small cuts in other departments. Seventy-five thousand is added for the governor as custodian of the new capitol, for wages, light, fuel and maintenance.

The governor sustains the recommendations in full of his code departments-heads. The state engineer wants $1,500,000 to build new roads and this, with the federal appropriation to match, makes three millions recommended for this purpose. The legislature two years ago appropriated close to six millions for this department, of which about five millions was for road building. His figures show the state expended only $166,000 his first year, but drew $1,455,000 of federal aid.

Urges Rigid Economy.

In the accompanying message Governor Bryan said:

"I have made recommendations for the various departments of government as to amounts that it seems to me wise to expend during the next two years in view of the agricultural and financial depression thru which the country has passed the last four years. The incoming governor will have fifteen days in which to submit a budget, either in its entirety or supplemental, to the legislature and I hope that the legislature and attorney general construe that to mean fifteen legislative days as it was apparent the statute intended to give him, and that no attempt will be made to limit him to fifteen calendar days as the incoming governor two years ago was limited by a decision by the legal department of the state.

"The supplementary budget which will be presented by the incoming governor is the working budget for the legislature in fact, and is the budget that will require three-fifths vote of the legislature to supplement or increase the items therein.

"The great increase in the cost of state government of Nebraska during the period of 1919 to 1922 inclusive, resulted in severe hardship to the taxpayers of Nebraska, and the demand for a reduction in taxes not only in Nebraska, but thruout the nation is so universal that if the will of the people is to be considered it is the duty of officials of the various branches of the government to endeavor to reduce expenses of the government to the minimum, cut out every unnecessary employe or item of expense that can be done without a sacrifice of the people's welfare of the state.

"During the past two years the cost of government in Nebraska has been greatly reduced but the public is falling for still further reductions and the president of the United States in each of his recent public papers has reiterated the demand by the people for a reduction of the tax burden and has considered calling a conference of the governors of the various states for the purpose of urging upon them the importance of reducing state, municipal and local governmental expenditures.

"No one can justly say that the various branches of the Nebraska government, executive, administrative, educational and judicial, during the past two years, have not given the people a sufficient and satisfactory service, and in preparing this budget I have used as a basis the recommendations and appropriations of two years ago, together with such additions, modifications and eliminations as the past two years have, in my judgment, demonstrated can be done in the interest of an efficient, economical and business-like administration of the state's affairs. In suggesting appropriations for state institutions, educational and administrative, I have recommended the amounts that were appropriaetd by the legislature or recommended by me two years ago for the conduct of these institutions and have provided a reasonable allowance for general repairs, but have not recommended any building or extension program for any of these institutions, except a cell house at the penitentiary, for the reason that a number of new buildings have been erected during the past two years to take care of the growing emergency needs of these institutions and for the reason that the producers of the state, who are required to supply the money thru taxation to conduct the state's business, are not in a financial condition to permit the state to branch out in any extensive building program that is not absolutely essential to the comfort and health of the state's wards.

"I have made no recommendation for increases in the salary of officers or employes, for the reason that those who are drawing compensation from the state are in a better average financial condition than those who are taxed to pay such salaries.

As to Code Departments.

"The so-called code departments are directly under the governor and the code statute says that wherever the word 'secretary' of a code department or the word 'department' is used in the code statute that that means the governor of the state. The governor is the spending agency for the departments under the code and his recommendations represent the spending agency's need for those departments as they have been administered during the past two years or could be administered in the judgment of the chief executive during the coming biennium. The legislature of two years ago failed to make any financial provision for the heads or secretaries of any code departments and as it was apparent that it was their intention to discontinue the administrative code departments as formerly provided by law, the chief executive during the past two years has reorganized the so-called code departments, abolished all duplications, over-lappings, discharged all unnecessary employes and abolished all activities that were not essential to giving an efficient, economical and business administration. However, owing to the failure of the legislature to repeal the code law it has been necessary to retain a number of duplications in governmental activities, unnecessary departments, unnecessary employes and unnecessary expense to the tax payers.

"In making budget recommendations for the departments directly under the governor for the coming two years I have based them on amounts that, in the judgment of the chief executive, would be needed after eliminatng by statute the remaining duplications in government and hence the unnecessary expense from the original so-called code provisions which are largely a duplication of the duties of the elected constitutional officers. I will refer to these unnecessary activities or duplications more at length in my message to the legislature.

"The capitol commission fund now on hand and which will be added to as the receipts from the present new capitol tax levy is collected, has already been appropriated and will be contracted against by the capitol commission before the end of the biennium. I will include in my message to the legislature the recommendations of the capitol commission for an additional levy and possible additional appropriation which may be needed during the coming two years. The total amount of the appropriations as indicated and recommended by me in this budget for the biennium of 1925-27 is $17,223,101.66.

"In compliance with the budget law I have prepared and present herewith appropriation bills based on the budget which I am submitting."

Mrs. Densmore, wife of Representative L. D. Densmore of Wymore has been appointed stenographer in the office of the secretary of the senate. Secretary Bernard authorized his first assistant, R. G. Douglas of Osceola, to appoint one stenographer and Mr. Douglas appointed Mrs. Densmore. In the house Representative Densmore is a member of the committee on employes.

In the senate Perry Reed of Hamilton is serving single handed as a committee on employes, a place he held two years ago.

All appointments of employes in the senate are subject to approval of the senate when submitted in reports of the committee on employes.

The senate is without telephone service to the outside world. All lines entering the office were severed when the Bryan blue sky department moved out of the rooms. Cotnections are to be made as soon as possible.

The state senate convened at 1:30 to prepare for attendance upon the joint convention to hear Governor Bryan's budget. There was little business to transact except preliminaries for the joint convention to be held Thursday afternoon for the inaugural of Governor-elect McMullen and the hearing of messages from the outgoing and incoming governors.

J. O. Shroyer of Humboldt is calling on legislators as a representative of the farmers' union. He explains that this organization this year has no legislation to ask for except action in a negative manner. The farmers' union legislative committee is asking for no new taxes, no child labor laws, no tax free securities, no increased centralization of road and school control, but an equitable distribution of road funds and desires no intangible tax law. The latter is really a demand for repeal of the intangible tax law.

POULTRY SHOW AN ATTRACTION

Fortieth Annual Display of Fine Birds and Eggs Not Affected by Embargo or Mysterious Disease.

The fortieth annual poultry show of the Nebraska State Poultry association now going on at the auditorium, was the center of attraction for a large crowd of visitors during organized agriculture week at the university. Over a thousand birds of the best breeds from Kansas, Colorado, Iowa and Nebraska are on display.

No traces of the widely heralded mysterious disease, that brought down the embargo, have been found among the birds on display, according to H. C. Wittman, secretary of the association. The classes in competition are smaller this year due to the embargo, he stated, but the quality of the strains is up to standard.

The largest class on display is the Rhode Island red class. A cockerel in this class brought an offer of $250 but the owner refused to sell. A new strain, the Jersey Black Giants, is on display in Lincoln for the first time.

A large egg exhibit in the interests of standardizing egg production is included in the exhibition. Outline charts, graphs and maps, made of eggs placed on forms show the progress of the industry. The show is conducted annually by the association which is affiliated with the state board of agriculture.

TERRITORIAL PIONEERS.

The Nebraska Territorial Pioneers' association will hold its annual reunion, Tuesday, January 13 at the Grand hotel, Twelfth and Q streets. Informal meeting and registration will begin at 10:30 and luncheon at 12:15. Following the luncheon a social hour will be enjoyed and at 2 p. m. the round table will assemble. "Come and give your experience of the years which are fast slipping into the long ago," is the plea of the executive committee made up of Frederick L. New, Mrs. A. R. Stevenson, C. E. Bardwell, Moses P. O'Brien and Minnie P. Knotts.

Antone Fiettner's sailless wind-driven ship Buckau attained a speed at Kiel of nine knots in a trial in a heavy sea. On Thursday the Buckau will leave on a cruise to Lubeck and possibly to Sweden.

DAVID VISITS A DEAR LITTLE MOTHER BIRD.

WHEN David discovered the queer-looking pear-shaped nest hanging from the branch of a palm tree, he just stood underneath it and stared.

"I don't suppose you've ever seen a house like this before," piped up a merry voice, and a dear little bird fluttered down near David's head. "I can tell by your looks you have never been in this part of the country before."

"No, I have never been in India before," replied David very politely. "May I ask who that lovely cradle belongs to? I've never seen anything in America like it. Of course the Oriole builds a swinging nest, but not like that one."

"That one belongs to me," piped the lovely little bird proudly. "And if you'd like to see it more closely I'll be glad to show it to you. One thing we Baya Birds do pride ourselves on—our nests. No bird in India can beat us on convenient homes."

She plucked a wee feather from her tail and gently waved it over David's head, and like magic he was whisked right up in the air and placed on the limb beside the nest, no larger than the little bird herself.

"I made this house from strips of green plantain leaves and a few strips from the date-palm," said Mrs.

"Look At the Outside Walls."

Baya Bird. "Now some of my relatives make their houses of grasses, but those made from date-palms and plantain leaves make much neater houses."

She led David into the long tubular entrance.

"This we use for our sitting and sleeping room," she chirped merrily. "When the youngsters are strong enough, they come out into this room to sleep.

"Now this is where we keep the little ones when they are very young," and she led David into another compartment.

"You'd call this the nursery, I suppose," suggested David.

"Just what it is," chirped Mrs. Baya Bird. "And this room at the side of the nursery, Daddy Baya Bird might call his study. We just go in there for a change. Did you take a good look at the outside walls of the nest?"

"I don't believe I did," laughed David. "The whole thing was done so quickly it nearly took my breath away. Let's take a peek at it.

"My goodness, what's the idea of the wee chunks of mud plastered all over the sides?"

"That's what I wanted you to see," chirped Mrs. Baya Bird. "I'll bet there isn't a bird in America that can boast of a lighted house. These daubs of mud are used as light holders. If you'd come around here at night, you'd see how pretty my home is. I gather the tropical fireflies that sail through the air and fasten them in the balls of mud and they make the place look lovely."

"I'm certainly going to come around tonight, and pay you a visit. But I must go back to the house now," and David and Mrs. Baya Bird once more settled on the ground. She waved another magic feather over David's head and he grew back to his regular size.

"I'll mark the tree with this stone," and David rolled a great heavy stone against the foot of the tree, "and then I'll not miss it," and bidding the little Bird Mother goodby, he hurried home.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Revelations of a Wife

Mother Graham's Anxiety Grows More Furtive.

QUICK as was my dash toward the hedge screening the kitchen entrance of the Durkee home—and I pride myself upon my ability to move swiftly and noiselessly—I was not able to discover the source of the mysterious, furtive rustling which I had heard when I had stepped from the side door ready for my trip to the bank.

I reached the hedge and went through the opening to the other side, but there was no trace of either human being or animal with the exception of Mrs. Durkee's cat, sitting contemplatively in the sunshine at least twenty feet from the hedge. With a little smile of derision at my energetic investigation, I decided that either the cat must have been responsible for the rustling or that my imagination, in Dicky's parlance, had been "working overtime again."

Retracing my steps to the front of the house, I walked rapidly out of the yard and down the old main street of Marvin, so familiar to me, to the bank, where I cashed a check for one hundred dollars, the money for which Mother Graham had asked. Tucking the bills away in my purse, I hurried back to the house to Mother Graham's room, where I found her sitting by the window overlooking the garden, where I had placed her before going to the bank.

She did not look up as I entered and I saw that she was bending forward, looking intently out of the window. I came close enough to touch her before she realized that I was in the room, but, characteristically, she gave no sign of surprise when she saw me.

"Did You Get It?"

"Did you get it?" she demanded, and at my affirmative nod she stretched out her hand imperatively.

"Give it to me, quick," she said, and when I had obeyed her she counted the bills and thrust them into her dress with a horrible little air of avidity utterly foreign to her.

"Thank you," she said perfunctorily, and then beckoned me closer to the window.

"Do you see anything moving away out there beyond the rose garden at our old place?" she whispered, as if she feared some one would hear her.

I looked searchingly in the direction she indicated, but there was no movement that I could discern, and I told her so.

"I'm sure I'm not mistaken," she said stubbornly. "I've been watching here ever since you went. The people next door went away for the week-end, so there's nobody there to look after things, and there might be all sorts of people lurking around, for all anybody knows."

"What did you think you saw, mother?" I asked perfunctorily.

"If I knew, do you think I'd be sitting here like a jumping jack on a string?" she snapped, and I made the mental amused note that she must be getting better, for there was no trace of the sweet humility with which she had talked to me during the hours of the previous day.

"It won't strain your eyes to look out there for a while, will it?" she went on with what she patently meant for heavy sarcasm, and I promptly moved nearer to the window.

"There is something out there in those bushes!" I exclaimed a minute later, for I, too, had seen a slight movement of the shrubbery, undiscernible, I was sure, to any one not watching for it. "I'll go right down and find out what it is, but it probably is some animal."

She clutched my dress frantically as I moved past her and her eyes were filled with the terror I had seen in them when she first told me that she was "in terrible trouble."

"No, no," she said tensely. "You mustn't go down there. You don't know what might happen to me. Wait—till—tomorrow and I'll go with you."

A Pledge to Avoid.

If it were not for my very real concern for her I could have smiled at her patent belief that she would be efficient protection for me, but I suppressed all amusement, and also put aside for the moment any idea of going down into the shrubbery. I knew that if I evinced the slightest indication of going, she would insist upon wresting a promise from me to keep away from the woodland, a pledge which I was most anxious not to make.

"I think both of us are getting excited over nothing," I said nonchalantly. "Suppose you let me bring your chair over here by the fire and away from the window. At least, whatever is out there won't come up here."

My mother-in-law looked up at me with widened eyes.

"I never thought of that," she faltered. "Suppose he does!"

I WONDER

NO matter where she may be—in the sunny warmth of the fair South, or the clear, frosty chill of the frozen North—ever her thoughts go with her letters to the beloved of all, and as she traces the heart she adores in the shifting sands or the melting snows, she wonders whether his heart will remain true and steadfast.

But she reckons without Cupid! For the little love-god knows these two are made for each other and no matter how great the distance that separates them, he watches ever that the love flame may keep burning brightly and eventually bring the wonderful happiness of walking through life together—never again to be separated.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE MEN AND WOMEN STILL LIVE IN CAVES.

THE days of cave-dwellers, or troglodytes, are not yet over.

For in Douirat, in the Ourghamma plateau of the Tunisian desert, the natives dwell in this primitive form of habitation.

Their homes are in the side of the great mountain. For streets they have the various shelves of the mountain. Low, ill-fitting doors lead into the rock itself, and windows are completely unknown. The only light that penetrates to the interior of these dwellings is what makes its way around the edges and cracks of the door.

The furnishing of these homes is not much more elaborate than the outer structure. There may be a high, shelf-like bed, and then again there may be only a mat to sleep on. Empty bottles and tin cans may adorn the walls as curios. The dishes few and primitive as they are, also hang about the walls.

Goat raising is the chief occupation of these people and they carry it on in a sort of community way. The animals are herded together in the valleys and in the evening are driven up the steep grade by the children. The goats seem to know their way home and frequently enter their master's home without guidance.

The homes of these troglodytes are about twenty feet long, eight feet high and eight feet wide. They use one stratum of rock as a floor and the one above as a ceiling. Then they dig into the comparatively soft interlying marl to form this interior. The walls are usually cemented and whitewashed and the ceilings form perfect vaulted arches.

Some of the homes consist of several rooms of the same dimensions, either opening out from the main room or having several entrances.

Light is provided by means of crude oil lamps. They are simply olive-oil and a wick placed in a hollow scooped out in a nick in the wall. There are no chairs in this town and only in the house of the Sheik does one find a table.

Keep Yourself Free from Colds If You Would Retain Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

THE woman who would retain her beauty unblemished must make up her mind to keep herself free from colds.

LUCREZIA BORI

There is no state more detrimental to beauty than that in which the eyes appear weak and reddened and the nose assumes a reddish, bulbous appearance.

One mental picture of yourself in the role pictured above should make you shudder and make up your mind to avoid colds by taking every possible precaution to keep yourself free from exposures that leave such unpleasant results.

Now, one of the principal causes of colds is taking the wrong kind of bath. So often young girls take a hot, or at least a very warm bath before they dress to go out in the evening. They emerge from the bath glowing, with every pore opened by the soothing heat of the water. They dress quickly and dash into the outer air, very often inadequately clad, if the costume happens to be evening dress. So often wraps for evening are lighter in weight than those for daytime wear. This, with the lighter frock for evening, makes the sum-total weight of the evening outfit infinitely lighter than that for daytime.

The thing I want to impress upon you is that it is better not to bathe so soon before going out unless your constitution can stand a cold dip after the warm bath. The cold water serves to close up the pores and thus does away with the great danger of catching cold.

The same rule holds true in the morning. It is all very well if your morning bath is warm, providing you can take a cold dash of water afterward. You will feel invigorated and be better off for the cold water stimulus.

If your constitution cannot stand the cold water, you may take your daily bath at night before you go to bed instead of in the morning. In this way you can have it pleasantly warm.

For the woman not strong enough to endure the cold bath, here is an excellent tonic which is to be used in tepid water:

Aromatic vinegar .....1 pint
Tincture of benzoin..1 wineglass

Put this into your tub of tepid water and you will find it most agreeable, as well as possessing tonic qualities.

The woman who is economical can make an excellent bath preparation by saving the bits of toilet soap which are too small to use conveniently. Grind or chop these into a fine powder, and to two ounces of this powder add four tablespoonfuls of borax. Sift this concoction into two quarts of bran. Pour a pint of this mixture into a bag made of fine old linen or cheesecloth. You can then use the bag as a wash cloth and you will find that it helps to make your skin soft and white and smooth.

Keep one of these wash cloths to use on your face and wash your face with it before you get into the tub, using warm water and rinsing it several times with clear cold water. You will be delighted with the appearance of your complexion.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am fifteen years old, but could easily be taken for eighteen. Last week my cousin introduced me to a young man four years my senior. He was very polite and in every respect acted like a gentleman.

He took me to the theatre and then took me home. He told me that he enjoyed my company very much. He asked me if he could take me out next Sunday again. I said yes.

I like him very much as a friend. My parents bitterly oppose my friendship with him because they think that I am too young to go out with men.

Are my parents right? Am I too young? Should I invite him to my home to meet my mother? My cousin, who is sixteen, tells me I am not too young.

BLUE-EYED BETTY.

BLUE-EYED BETTY: Yes, dear, your parents are right, as parents usually are. In spite of what your sixteen-year-old cousin says, you're still too young to be going out with men. Don't you realize, Betty, that your parents are the best friends you have in the world and that their only concern in life is to make you happy?

This is the time you should be whole-heartedly devoted to your studies, dear. When the proper time comes, your parents will be only too glad to let you go out.

Tell your friend frankly, my dear, why you cannot go out with him any more. That is the best way to avoid a misunderstanding and to gain his respect.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a man twenty-five years of age and am very much puzzled over this problem: I am going with a young lady of twenty. When I am at her house and in the sitting room with all her family, and sometimes other people, she comes over and sits on the arm of my chair and kisses me before all the rest.

Now, I am considered a fine young man by all who know me, and will you please inform me if this girl is the right kind of company for me? We are not engaged. Please advise me what to do. BASHFUL JERRY.

BASHFUL JERRY: The young lady you are going out with is certainly indiscreet and uncontrolled. Since you are not engaged, it is not proper for her to kiss you or to allow you to kiss her, at all, much less in public. Perhaps she does not understand the nature of your true feelings toward her and thinks that you are engaged. Such misunderstandings have been known to exist.

Tell her exactly how you regard her, and that things cannot go on as they are.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

YOUR HEALTH

Short Fasts Surely Help to Renew Your Youth

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

IN Chicago they have been making some interesting experiments. The head of the department of physiology in the University of Chicago fasted for fifteen days. He believes the experience renewed the youthfulness of his tissues.

According to the report I saw, a fast of this length increases the powers of the body to take care of food. It appears to store up energy. The supply of gastric juices is added to and on this account food is more readily digested.

There is no suffering involved after the first pangs of hunger disappear. Gradual weakening of strength is observed, but aside from this nothing disagreeable is noted.

The average person "feels weak" and "faint" if he does not get his meal right on time. Much of this sensation is psychological. We are creatures of habit. Unless the food is ready, we look for some sign of bodily protest and of course we get it.

Mother worries tremendously if the baby is "off its feed" and refuses to eat. She looks for the little one to grow weak and to suffer seriously for lack of food.

As a matter of fact, even a tiny babe can do without nourishment for a surprising time. If the digestion is upset, it is far better to cut off food than to overtax a weakened stomach.

I am not sure that long fasts are productive of practical good. Usually, disordered digestion is the result of bad eating habits. Unless these habits are overcome, there will be a speedy return of the symptoms on resuming regular eating.

There is at least one lesson, and a good one, in the Chicago experiments. If a man can go two weeks without any food at all, and suffer no more inconvenience than a gradual weakening of strength, why should you eat so much food at each meal? Why not reduce your intake and relieve the pressure on your vital organs?

Life is shortened by overeating. Too much strain is placed on stomach, kidneys, liver and indeed all the organs. It is a foolish habit and should be curbed.

It is hard to control appetite but to do so is a wise thing. Even though you do not fast for fifteen days, try it now and then for fifteen hours at least, at a stretch. It will do you good.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

Palatable Ways of Serving Soup Meats.

HOUSEWIVES who have learned the lesson of economy count on the soup meat for a use beyond that of contributing to the soup some of its flavor and goodness. Those who know, buy with this thought in mind. A nice piece of center shinbone has a good thick piece of meat on it that is very good after it is boiled until tender in the seasoned liquid, and it should be lifted when done and freed from the bones that may go back into the soup, then be set aside for use.

Perhaps the housewife who lives in the country may have a young rooster she can spare, and if it is prepared and put in with the meat and also lifted when tender it will be found excellent for salad, creaming or hash. And here again all bones and trimmings are thrown back into the soup pot. The addition of chopped celery and tops, a sliced large onion, a half bay leaf and a half bud of garlic, and, if liked, a small can of tomatoes, all contribute to the flavor of the chicken and meat

Good Base for Any Soup.

After the meats have been removed and the bones have cooked a little longer, the soup may be strained, cooled, the grease removed, and it is ready for any sort of soup that one cares to make, using the rich seasoned stock as a basis. The vegetables that have been cooked with the stock have lost their goodness, and fresh ones should be added that will cook almost as quickly as the soup takes to reheat, then they have a nice, fresh flavor. By this method nothing is wasted either in meats or vegetable content.

Sometimes the meat when done is placed in a steamer to keep it hot while the rest of the dinner is being prepared for the table. In this case a horseradish sauce, a drawn butter sauce highly seasoned with capers added, or a smooth tomato sauce is served with the boiled meat. Again, a sauce is made such as is served with a so-called "sour roast." This is made of two cupfuls of water, one cupful of vinegar, a quarter cupful of sugar, pepper, salt, a thickening of roux made of browned flour and butter, a cupful of stoned raisins and a little flavoring of nutmeg. Slice the meat, lay it in the sauce and serve on a hot dish garnished with potato cakes.

A Good Beet Hash.

The soup meat also makes a good beet hash, allowing one part meat, one part chopped cold boiled beets and two parts cold boiled and chopped potatoes. Season with pepper, salt, a little sugar and a generous lump of butter. Add sufficient water to moisten the mass slightly and cook covered until heated through and softened, then uncover and cook, stirring constantly, until the consistency liked. Serve mounded on a hot dish with poached eggs over the top.

Soup meats have been too long looked upon as only fit to be cooked to rags in the soup and then be strained away into the waste, but with enlightenment on the subject let us hope they will be taken at their value and used in ways that will help boost the budget.

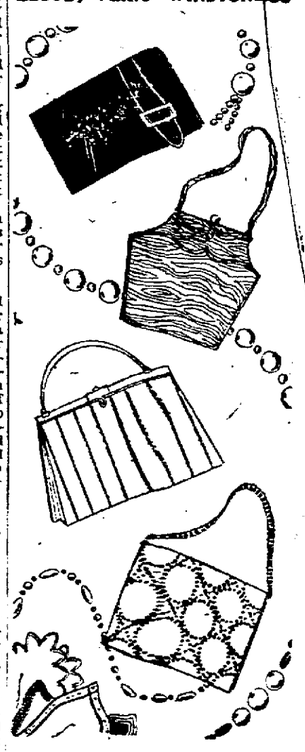

A little dish made by a well-known French chef in one of the big hotels may be tried by the home cook for a luncheon dish on the day she has the soup meat.

Dish from Soup Meat.

Peel and slice an onion thin and fry it in a generous lump of butter until done; then skim it out. Add a half cupful of vinegar and a quarter cupful of water to the seasoned butter with pepper, salt and a teaspoonful of sugar. Thicken with brown roux, then lay in as many slices of meat as are needed. Let stand two minutes, then lay the meat in a buttered baking dish, add the onion and gravy, spread the top with mashed potato thickly, then put in the oven

A Smart Group of Bags for the Winter Season.

THE bags sketched above represent a smart choice for all times of day. At the top of the column we have a flat envelope purse in black patent leather, edged with red patent leather and finished with a red buckle.

Below this is a brown moire bag with a round half of jade above the clasp. Third from the top is one of the satchels which are enjoying such a vogue at the present moment. The leather is black suede, marked with stripes of red suede.

The evening bag sketched at the bottom of the column is of white kid, marked by a striking pattern in black and white pearls.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, JANUARY 8.

A day of perplexities and uncertainties may be looked for according to the adverse aspects of the planets, both by lunar and mutual direction. Under the opposition of Luna to Jupiter, it might prove disastrous to subject money to any manner of risk, especially in speculation, or to squander it in personal indulgences, or in lending without proper security. This critical financial situation is enhanced by the adverse place of Saturn and Mercury. In affairs of the home and the heart the prospect is most interesting, since Neptune in trine with Venus and Sol parallel with Neptune may promote unusual phases.

Those whose birthday it is are under the forecast of a probably hazardous year for finance, especially in the matter of speculation, lending and personal extravagance. While new projects may flourish, extraordinary precaution should be taken in renewing contracts, lest there be fraud or misrepresentation. There is a possibility of active, possibly sensational or erratic, love affairs. A child born on this day may be extravagant, and careless with the truth unless trained early in youth.

GROCER BOY TO GOVERNOR

NEW EXECUTIVE HAS LONG LIST OF ACHIEVEMENTS.

Adam McMullen Began in Ranks—Natural Leaning Toward Politics Was Shown in Early Life.

WYMORE, Neb., Jan. 7.—Adam McMullen, who started a real poor boy and succeeded in climbing the ladder of fame and finance, has successfully demonstrated beyond any reasonable doubt that democracy and equality are the birthrights of the American people nowadays as they were in the days of Abraham Lincoln.

Born in New York state in 1873, he moved with his parents to Nebraska in 1884 when they took up their residence at Wymore. The town was only three years old at that time. It was a railroad division point and this fact may have influenced the elder McMullen in making the selection since he had been a locomotive engineer and retained a soft spot in his heart for anything connected with the railroads.

Governor McMullen's parents were born in Scotland. From 1884 to 1890 the father and the older brothers operated a grocery known as "The Palace Grocery" situated on the main street of the village in the block where the Markle theater now stands The governor was the official "counter jumper." Besides assisting in his father's store he was also employed for two years as a printer's "devil" on the staff of the Wymore Weekly Arbor State, a local publication, edited by the late Colonel J. R. Dodds.

He graduated from high school at the age of sixteen. The other ten members of the graduating class were: Levi Scott, now of Irving, Kas.; Myrtle Southwick-Kier, now deceased; Laura Southwick, Nestor, Calif: Florence Mitchell-Fenton, Rawlins, Wyo.; Elizabeth Haynes-Davison, Fairmont; Elsie Brownell-Horn, Omaha; Dollie Kness-Brown, Cozad; Zilda Wilner, San Francisco; Merrimen Reed, Holmesville, and Park Lyons, Seattle.

This was the second class graduated from the Wymore high schools which were then under the superintendency of R. G. Woodworth, now of Oberlin, Ohio. It was as students in the Wymore schools that Mr. McMullen and Miss Cora Greenwood, who later became Mrs. McMullen, became acquainted.

A short time later the youthful McMullen came to Lincoln where he entered the University of Nebraska. He worked his way thru the university by part time work on The Lincoln Evening Call.

A natural leaning toward politics was exhibited early in his life. He cast his first presidential vote in 1896 for McKinley. Several years of his early life were spent as a law student in Washington, D. C., where he worked at various times as a clerk in the war department, he acted as private secretary to Senator Deitrich for a time returning to Wymore in 1904.

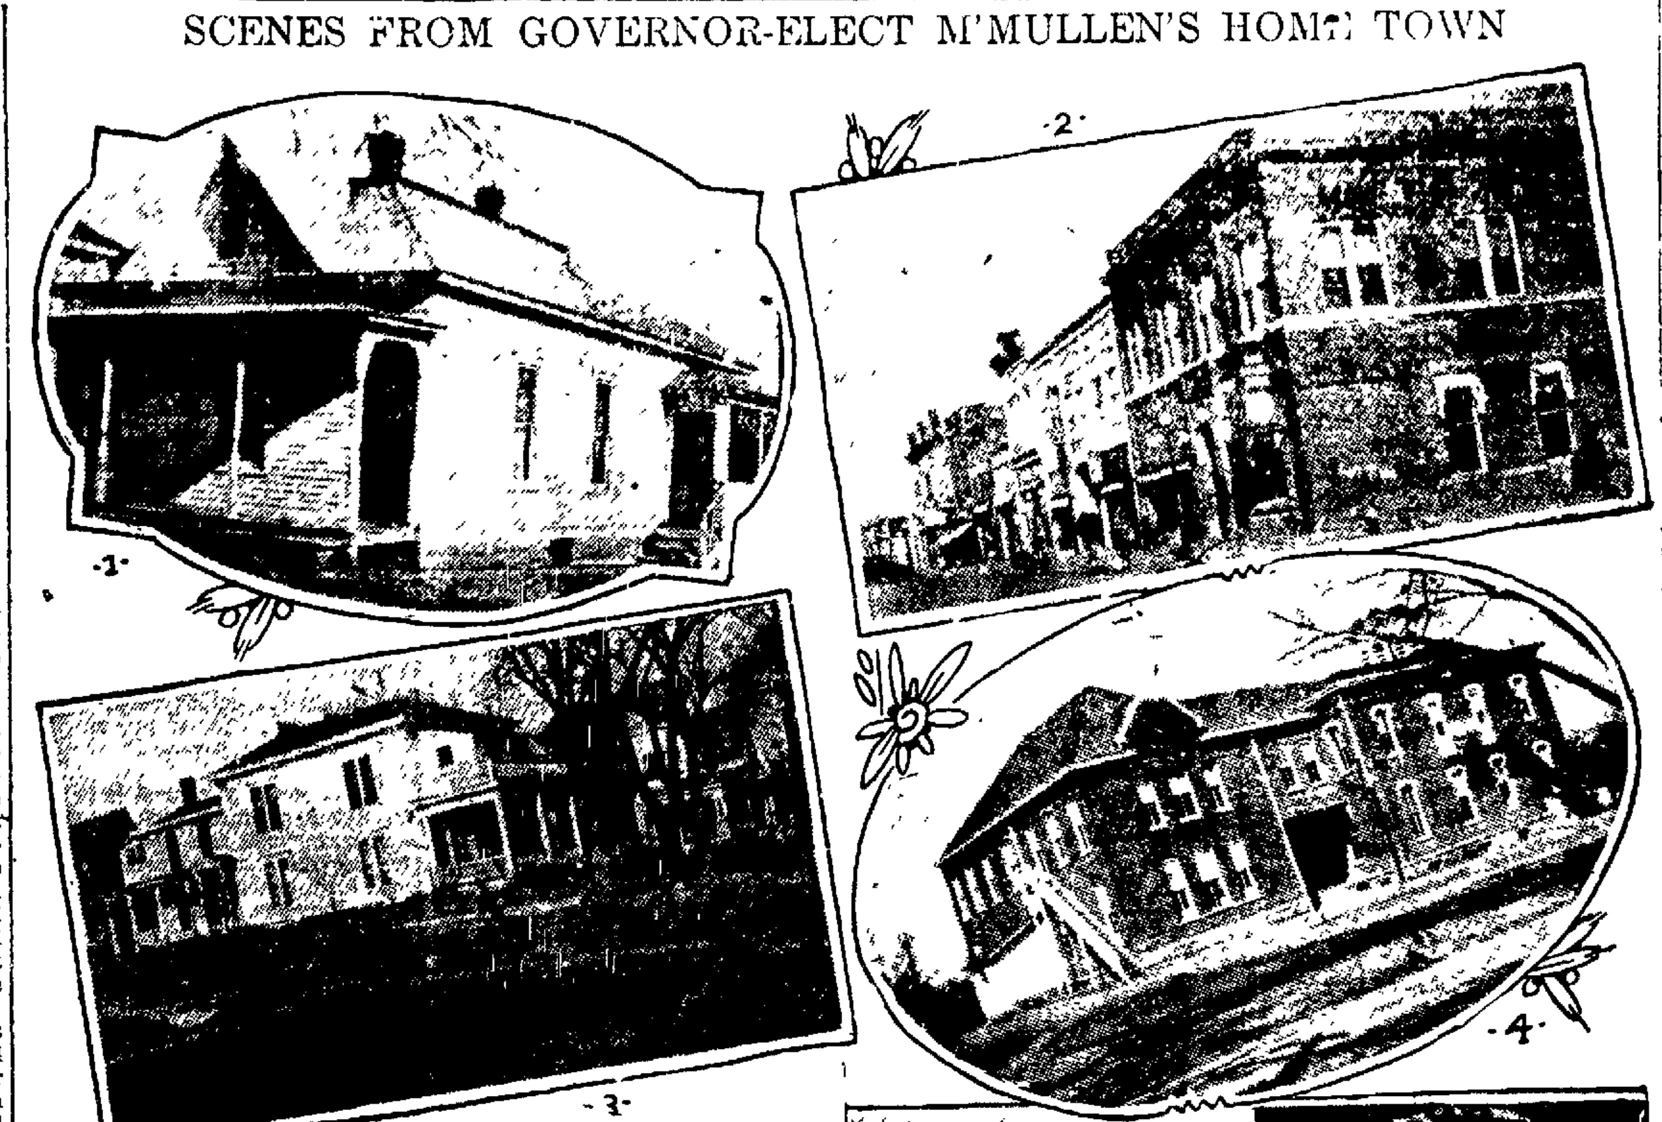

He served several terms on the board of education, one of them as president. He was elected mayor of Wymore in 1915 and has always taken an active part in civic affairs. He served a term as senator from the sixteenth district, Gage and Pawnee counties, and a term as state representative from the Thirty-eighth district. He was master of the Wymore Masonic lodge in 1907.

He practiced law in Wymore for several years, his office being in a room at the front of the second story of the First National bank building, in the business center of the city. The building has been remodeled in recent years.

Mr. McMullen owns and controls considerable realty in Wymore and vicinity. When he was a boy he lived with his parents in a small cottage which still stands on North Ninth street in Wymore, and which is still owned by the McMullens. The father, now ninety-three years old, lives with the governor. There were four brothers and two sisters. Two brothers now reside in Chicago. The others including the mother, are dead.

Mrs. McMullen's girlhood was spent in a spacious home on North Ninth street, removed but a block from the McMullen property. Mrs. H. A. Greenwood, mother of Mrs. McMullen, still owns it and lives in it, and Mrs. Lake Bridenthal, sister of Mrs. McMullen, owns and occupies a large residence to the north of the Greenwood home in the same block. Mrs McMullen was a student of the Wymore schools and was graduated from an eastern girl's finishing school, and studied in Washington, D. C., a year. The McMullens are members of the Episcopal church at Beatrice, and Mrs. McMullen teaches a Sunday school class in the church.

TO DEBATE SUPREME COURT

University Teams Will Discuss Right of Congress to Overrule Decisions on Statutes.

The policy of congress overruling decisions of the supreme court will be the question for the annual intercollegiate debates at the University of Nebraska this year, Prof. M. M. Fogg said Wednesday. Nebraska will probably maintain the affirmative against the University of Iowa at Lincoln and the negative against the University of South Dakota at Vermillion—contests in the triangular league established in 1922.

The proposition is as follows: "Resolved, that congress should be given the power to overrule, by a two-thirds vote of both houses, supreme court decisions which hold acts of congress unconstitutional."

The twenty-fourth preliminary try-out, open to all regular students at the university, will be held soon after the beginning of the second semester, at which a committee of professors and former intercollegiate debaters will select the team members and other members of the intercollegiate-debate seminary which will meet in the "Think Shop" (University hall 106A). All students who purpose to enter this competition are requested to notify Professor M. M. Fogg.

The dates of the debates have not yet been definitely settled. The contests may take plac in early March, or they may be delayed until mid-April.

DAUGHTER WANTS SHARE

Claims Step-Mother and Step-Sister Poisoned Her Father's Mind Against Her.

Mrs. Johanna Marie Fester of Buffalo county, filed an appeal Wednesday from the verdict of a jury that held the will submitted in court to be the last one executed by her father, Friedrich Wilhelm Weber. She claims that it is not his will, but was executed thru the influence and artifice of his wife, her step-mother, and her step-sisters, Caroline Sissine Weber. The mother is seventy-nine years old, the daughter contesting the will is fifty-seven and Miss Weber forty-one.

The plaintiff says that her mother died when she was four years old, and that her father remarried. To the second marriage was born the daughter Caroline. She says that she was ill-treated by the step-mother and step-sister, fault found with everything she did, and that this was done for the purpose of alienating her from her father, so that when he died he left her but $50, gave the other daughter $200 and the wife all the remainder, with Miss Weber to get all the remainder if her mother died first

Both the county and district courts decided in favor of the will.

FAITHFUL DOG IN DEMAND

Dozen Apply to Care for Collie Belonging to R. G. Cox Family.

Inquiries from a dozen sources have been received by C E. McClain, superintendent of the humane society, regarding the welfare and future prospects of the Collie dog found New Year's day at the site of the R. G Cox home, five miles west of Lincoln, two days after the house was wrecked and burned by an explosion of a carbide lighting plant.

The dog's left front foot was amputated Saturday due to an injury probably sustained in the explosion, in which part of the forepaw was cut off Otherwise, the animal's health is first rate, according to Mr. McClain.

Anent the Collie's future prospects, the superintendent said that the Cox family will have first choice to recover their pet. If the family does not wish to take the dog again, one of those who apply will receive him Henry Schultz of Lincoln found the injured dog still keeping faithful vigil at the scene of the tragedy two days after the explosion.

OLD KING COAL ABSENT

Cowgill Believes Combination of Circumstances Has Resulted in Temporary Shortage.

"This mild weather is a blessing to coal consumers," declares City Commissioner Cowgill "Unless it continues long enough to permit a substantial supply of coal to be mined and transported I predict a temporary coal shortage within a few days; only, however, if the weather gets cold suddenly

"Just before Christmas bad weather hit all the coal fields around us and slowed up production, and then came holiday week and the mines laid idle part of that time. In the meantime, coal was being used up rapidly all about this country.

"Within a few days supplies should be restored to handle a big rush, but right at present a 'run' on the reserve supply here in Lincoln would find them pretty short, I believe."

Fred Dawson Denies Rumor That He May Leave

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR TO STAY IN LINCOLN

Denies Report He Is Being Considered for Position at New York University—Will Remain Here.

OMAHA, Jan. 7.—(United Press.)—Fred Dawson, head of the Nebraska university athletic department, today denied rumors that he was being considered as head football coach at New York university.

"I'm going to stay at Nebraska," Dawson said when told of the rumors.

Rumors were out Wednesday that Dawson is one of the men being considered for coach at the University of New York. Dawson is in Omaha, it was stated at his home, and would be there all day. One of the members of the committee searching for a coach said that he had not heard of Dawson being considered for any school and rather doubted the report. He said that Dawson was very enthusiastic over his work at the university and he did not believe he was considering any other position.

There have been rumors several times that Dawson had offers from other schools. One some time ago was to the effect that he would tie up with the University of Wisconsin but Dawson at that time denied that he was being considered at that school.

Bucky Harris Tells Story of Life.

Copyright 1925, North American Newspaper Alliance.

This is the third installment of the autobiography of Stanley Harris, youngest major league baseball manager in the history of the game and the victorious strategist and one of the outstanding players in the 1924 world series, in which his Washington club won the pennant for the first time. The rise of Harris from colliery boy to big league manager in eight years is one of the most remarkable life stories America has ever produced.

By Stanley Bucky Harris.

The white collar job didn't pay as much as the one in the mines Instead of twelve cents an hour the scale was eight cents There was no reduction in hours. If I took the job my pay would be cut to $4.32 a week That didn't look very good to me. But the arguments of mother and Merle soon convinced me that my best chance for getting ahead lay in working in the office, for a time at least.

The other boys, in the mine joshed me about taking a job at less money. They couldn't understand why a fellow would do such a thing. And I wouldn't have, if it hadn't been for my mother and brother. A couple of dollars a week was a lot of money to the kids in Pittston—and to their families as well.

"We'll get along all right," mother assured me. "I want you to grow up to be something besides a miner. You won't get very far working with your hands alone"

Again I informed her I would be a baseball player some day. She smiled and told me in the meantime to work hard in the office, go to night school and let my baseball future take care of itself.

"Stan, you're a live wire kid and this may mean a good break for you," Merle told me when I made the change. "It's a tough racket trying to make the grade in professional baseball and you're so doggone small you'll have a lot of trouble. Now if your size would be against you, you'll be set for a good job with the coal company."

"I'm not thru growing yet," I answered. "I'll be big enough to play baseball for a living some day if I've got the other stuff"

"Atta boy," Merle came back. "But always leave yourself protected when you make a jump. Don't neglect a sure thing to gamble on an uncertainty. Do your best on the job and the next one will take care of itself."

Knowing how set I was on becoming a baseball player, and knowing from personal experience the fierce competition for minor and major league berths. Merle was preparing me for what he feared would some day be a great disappointment. He didn't set a very high value in those days on my playing ability. And I don't blame him either. Few kids ever looked less like major league timber.

Nick Gets Me a Seat.

The Butler colliery was four miles from Pittston I had to get up at 5:30 in the morning to catch the company train for the mine. Mother would let me sleep until the last possible minute. I could dress as fast as a fireman. She would have a hot breakfast on the table when I raced into the kitchen.

She would see I was bundled up to the eyes on cold mornings. And that was a tough winter, too. I must have made a strange sight as I jogged up and down the windswept platform to keep warm while waiting in the lantern light for the train to take me to work I came in for a lot of joshing from the miners, because of my clothing Much of it had once been Merle's. Some of it was patched

One of them, a Pole, who had Americanized his name to Nick Stanley, had a lot of good natured fun with me He was a giant in stature. Like most big men he was slow to anger The only time I ever saw him mad was when he beat up two fellow Poles who ousted me from my seat and dropped me, none too gently, in the aisle. They evidently had had a hard night in the bar rooms. Certainly they needed the seat more than I did, but Nick didn't like their methods

When he had beaten them up thoroly he took the seat and pulled me in beside him In his precise English he told me that when I grew up never to let a big man pick on a little one. Poor Nick! He went to France to fight for his adopted country and never returned.

Nick and I became great friends. He would joke me about being all covered up except my eyes, advise me always to keep them open and to use them daily to learn something. He predicted that I would be a mine boss. He couldn't understand why I wanted to be a baseball player. I read him the sporting pages, telling of big league salaries. They were far less then than now. To Nick the figures seemed fabulous. They did to me, too.

"Maybe I won't ever make as much as $5,000 a year," I told Nick, "but I'll make a couple of hundred a month."

"Don't aim for the low—aim for the high," Nick advised. "Some day you will be big—then you can do big things."

He had been going to night school and had studied copy book proverbs. But no one can say his philisophy was unsound. Nick was a friend. all right I wish he might have seen the world's series with the Giants.

Tomorrow—Sunday School League Days.

WHEN BUCKY WAS AN OFFICE BOY.

Bucky when he was office boy at the Butler colliery. He's the little fellow standing at the right (front row), with a glove The others are colliery players too—and the mines have turned out some mighty good big leaguers. Bucky took a job at less money so he'd have more time for baseball.

BUCKY MAKING HOME RUN.

Bucky Harris once thought that maybe possibly, if he kept at it hard enough and overcame all his faults, he might get a chance even in a world series. And here he is making a home run in the final game of the series in which he managed the winning club. The inset portrait shows how Bucky looks when he is keeping a keen eye on the play from outside.

WORLD'S RECORDS BROKEN BY NURMI

Great Finnish Runner Within Ninety Minutes Makes New Indoor Mile and 5,000 Meter Marks.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Running on boards for the first time, Paavo Nurmi, Finland's super-star, raced America's speediest distance runners to exhaustion in Madison Square Garden last night and broke two world's records.

Within a space of 90 minutes, the four event winner of the Olympic games in Paris last summer made a new indoor mark of 4:13 3-5 for the mile and 14:44 3-5 for 5,000 meters. His new record for the mile was one second faster than Joie Ray's former mark and his time for the 5,000 meters was about 10 seconds faster than Ray's previous record.

Nurmi had never competed on boards before and was running against American trained stars who know every inch of the Madison Square Garden course. His performance therefore was the most astonishing ever seen in an athletic meet in any land. Perhaps it was well for the pride of his rivals that he was making his first start on boards else the runners in the field behind him would have needed a bicycle to catch up with him.

The mile run was perhaps the greatest race over that distance ever staged as for the first time on record the first four men to cross the finish line came in under 4:17. Nurmi had to make a new world's record to beat the game little Ray who ran his heart out in the hopeless attempt to make up for his poor showing in Paris last summer. Nurmi, however, was hardly pushed. With two laps to go over and eleven lap route, Nurmi sprinted into a 15 yard lead over the field and turning into the stretch for the tape he glanced over his shoulder and eased up almost to a walk when he saw that he was in complete command.

Easily Outrun Opponents.

As the milers failed to test the Finnish star so also did the longer distance men in the 5,000 meters race. Willie Ritola, the American trained Finn and the arch enemy of Nurmi, tried to run out his fellow countryman and he held the lead for most of the distance. The flying Finns set such a terrific pace that the other runners in the field of six were lapped. Nurmi, however, was in command every step of the distance. With two laps to go to the finish, he sprinted into a lead of forty yards over Ritola and he went thru the tape like a Paddock with plenty to spare.

Nurmi had hoped to make a new 1500 meter record in the mile race but there were no timers there to catch him and he failed to make a three miles record during the 5,000 meter race by a scant two and two-fifths seconds.

Nurmi proved to the satisfaction of 9,000 spectators who jammed the garden for the Finnish-American athletic club that he is the greatest runner that ever wore spikes. Old timers dug in the memory and remarked that Mel Sheppard, that great old American hero, was the only one who could approach him and that even the great Mel was not up to the flying Finn.

The American milers were beaten but they were not humilated. Ray who finished second behind Nurmi and Lloyd Hahn, Hahn, who came in third were both under the former record and it took a super-runner like Nurmi to beat them. The showing made by the Americans in the 5,000 meter race was poor but not as humiliating as the record shows because Americans are not distance runners and every one knew that if Nurmi was to be beaten over that distance that it would be Ritola who would have to do it.

After making such a wonderful showing in his first races it is probable that Nurmi will engage in a number of other meets and it is not unlikely that he will remain in this country permanently.

"He's just not human." a veteran American trainer said. "did you see him eating an apple before he went to the starting line for the 5,000 meters? That would kill any normal runner."

WALKER-M'TIGUE TO FIGHT TONIGHT

Welterweight Champ and Light Heavy to Stage Twelve-Round Fisticuff at the Newark, N. Y., Armory.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan 7.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world and Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, will engage in fistic combat at the armory here tonight. The match is scheduled to go 12 rounds, if neither fighter assumes a horizontal position earlier on the program

Walker is jumping up two notches from his own class, in facing McTigue Altho the two boxers are two divisions apart, McTigue is light—only about 160 pounds, while Walker will weigh in at 153

If Walker's bonecrushing wallops should bring down McTigue before the end of the battle, it will be the second time that a fighter has held championships in two separate divisions. Way back in 1897, when he was a middleweight, Ruby Bob Fitzsimmons won the heavyweight title by socking Gentleman Jim Corbett for a row of goals

SCANDAL RECORDS TO BE GIVEN OUT

Judge Landis Announces That Records in Dolan-O'Connell Investigation Will Be Made Public.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Testimony taken in the investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell scandal which caused the two former members of the New York Giants to be barred from organized baseball will be made public in a few days. Commissioner Landis promised in a letter to New York baseball writers.

In response to a letter from the writers pointing out that the opinion existed generally among baseball fans that something was being covered up, the commissioner said he had intended from the start to give all details of his investigation but that he had wanted to wait for the most opportune time.

The promise to make the testimony public was taken to mean that Landis is reaching the end of the investigation he promised to continue and that he feels publication of the testimony will not tip off any leads that might have helped him to get all the facts.

SISLER OF BROWNS IS KEEPING BUSY

Playing Squash and Doing Great Deal of Trading of Players—Expects to Make Showing.

BY MAX BUCKINGHAM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 7.—Squash matches and wholesale trading are making George Sisler, youthful manager of the Browns, one of St. Louis' busiest citizens this winter.

The manager of the St. Louis American League club flits out of a squash tournament long enough to push a half dozen members off his team in trade for a few prospects that he believes will bolster up his aggregation and put them on a "1, 2, 3" basis the coming season.

"First off, let me say that to come out on top the Browns must defeat Washington, New York, Detroit and Philadelphia," Sisler chirped when asked about the pennant prospects.

To do this he has started "weeding out" and "adding to" the 1924 Brownie crew.

Urban Shocker, ace of the pitching staff for a number of years, went in a wholesale swap along with Bayne, Lyons and Schliebner. Shocker went to the Yankees and the latter three to Toledo in the American Association.

In exchange for Shocker, St. Louis fans this season will get to see Joe Bush, the former Yankee moundsman, performing in a Brownie costume. Also Gaston, a Yankee relief man, will come here, as well as Joe Giard, last year one of the top notchers in the American Association.

Does More Trading.

Then, when St. Louis fans thot Sisler had gone back to squash again the young manager slipped out with another wholesale trade which brings Leo Dixon, a smart St. Paul catcher, to St. Louis to relieve the veteran Hank Severeid. St. Paul gets Pitcher Kolp, Catcher Pat Collins and outfielder Cedrick Durst in exchange for Dixon. Strings are held on Durst, who came up two years ago to occupy Sisler's shoes in the event the Brownie manager failed to recover from a serious sinus operation.

Right now Sisler has gone back to his squash and the lineup appears something as follows:

First, Sisler, second, McManus; third, Robertson, shortstop, Gerber, outfield, Jacobson, Williams, Tobin and Bennett; pitchers, Vangilder, Bush, Dixie Davis, Pruett, Danforth and Blaeholder Severeid the veteran mask man, will have Dixon and Rego as his assistants

But Sisler isn't paying too much attention to squash even now He admits he is looking for another outfielder and has his eyes directed particularly upon Johnny Mostil, fleet White Sox gardener

And in a sort of a bashful manner Sisler winds up his outline of prospects by saying

"You can tell the fans that I hope I can hit a lot better myself this year"

This and That in World of Sport

Gr-gr-gr-whir-whir-!!!? — station KDING, Palo Alto, California, Glenn Warner speaking: "Yes, Notre Dame has a great team but I believe I have a greater. While the making of the largest number of touchdowns in a football game is very desirable, it must be remembered that the making of points is not the only way of judging"—gr-gr-gr-whir—"and regarding b r e a k s—the Irish got all the breaks. Repeatedly the four horselessmen broke thru my line and raced down the field with the ball at break neck speed. When my backfield started around the Irish ends their speed was repeatedly broken by fierce tackling of the Irish—Yes, they got all the breaks —what we neglected to do was to put the brakes on the Irish."

Coach Rockne's advice about a new coach for Nebraska might read something like this: "I would advise Nebraska to get a coach who will not muss up the record of Notre Dame about every two years. It is disappointing to Notre Dame fans to have the team defeat every eleven in America every two years and then have the records smeared at Nebraska."

We understood that Firpo is willing to meet Dempsey again providing he can carry a horseshoe in each glove. It is rumored that he has a superstition that a horseshoe in each mit is an aid to victory.

There are few people who cannot give advice about getting a new coach for Nebraska. The most desirable one is a man who will never lose another game That would satisfy everybody at Nebraska U. We've heard some fans say that what Nebraska needs is a coach who will develop a good forward passing machine, and a good line along with a fleet backfield that also has great line-bucking power. Well, that includes about all of it. No trouble to do that at all. All that is needed is about fifteen star players.

HUDKINS QUARREL IS ONE FOR COURTS

State Boxing Commission Is Not Body to Pass Upon Who Has a Claim on the Former Lincoln Boxer.

The matter of determining who is Ace Hudkin's manager is for the courts to decide and not a matter for the state boxing commission to rule upon, was the opinion given by Lee Basye, assistant attorney general, Tuesday afternoon when Harry Reed and Pat Boyle, the latter of Omaha, appeared before the boxing commission to present their claims as manager of the Lincoln boxer.

When Boyle appeared before M. R. Shrader, state boxing commissioner, he took the men concerned to the office of the attorney general for a hearing. Boyle asked for a continuance, saying that he had not had time to prepare for the hearing. Mr. Bayse then said that he understood that the matter for settlement was whether Boyle had fulfilled his contract with Reed and whether Reed, under the contract, was now manager of Hudkins or whether Boyle had a claim to him.

The assistant attorney general said that Reed had had a contract with Hudkins and had sold the contract for Boyle who had not paid the complete sum stipulated in the contract for the transfer of Hudkins. It is purely a civil matter, he said, and he could not see that the boxing commission had anything to do with it from the legal standpoint. The courts should decide.

Attorney E. G. Maggi then stated that he was representing Mrs. Hudkins, mother of the boy, and wanted to state that the mother wished to have the contract made by the two managers with her son annulled He is not of age, being eighteen years old, and could not legally make a contract. Mr. Maggi said this he also understood was a matter for the courts to act upon.

The assistant attorney general in passing upon the matter of the power of the board said that he understood that the commission has the power to decide as between the boxer and the public, as they stand between the boxer and the public and their jurisdiction is mainly that of a moral power. There was no doubt but what the courts could set aside the contract of Ace Hudkins, if the mother asked the court to do so, but the boxing commission had the power to say to Hudkins that he could not box in Nebraska if it wished to take such action because of his failure to keep his contract.

Boyle and Reed had a talk after the meeting but reached no agreement; however, it is reported that they are trying to bring about some kind of settlement. Hudkins is now in California.

FARM FORUM WELL BEGUN

Horticulture, Livestock Breeding and Rural Economics Well Under Way.

Horticultural and livestock breeding divisions of the annual state organized agriculture meetings got away to a rolling start Tuesday at the state agricultural college, where the first meeting of the farm conclave was held beginning at 10 a. m.

In the absence of President Grove M. Porter of Nebraska City, C. G. Marshall of Nebraska City presided at the first meeting of the state horticultural society held in the plant industry building at 2 p. m., Tuesday.

The Nebraska improved livestock breeders met in the judging pavilion at 1 p. m. with H. J. Gramlich in charge. The horse, considered as motive power largely displaced in the industrial world by the gasoline motor, was discussed both by the speakers and the 150 breeders in attendance, who held open forum discussion.

The first number on the breedgers' program was a demonstration showing the ability of a good draft stallion to improve type. Fred Hobert of Greeley, Ia., lectured on "The Horse, a Friend Who Pulls For You." Prof. D. W. Kays from Columbus, O., lectured on "Horses Against Motor Trucks in Large Cities."

During the general discussion led by Professor Gramlich, A. P. Coon, formerly of Woods Brothers, voiced the conviction of a majority of those present in stating that horse growers need not create a market, but rather raise a class of horses that have size and quality. Others that spoke are A. M. Patterson of Kansas City, Mo., and Joe Rouselle of Seward.

Horticultural Group Meeting.

About seventy-five were in attendance at the Horticultural society meeting, which opened with a discussion by Prof. C. H. Diggs of Ames, Iowa, on the landscape gardening work under way in that state. Miss Edna Benson of the agricultural college talked on "The Use and Arrangement of Flowers in the Home."

Jacob Sass of Bennington, a specialist in iris and peony growing, talked on "Growing and Developing the Iris." Mr Sass has developed the only fall blooming iris known.

George Mashall talked on ornamental trees, shrubs, and flowers from the nurseryman's standpoint.

The society adjourned at 3:45 p. m. to the assembly room in agricultural hall where Professor Diggs spoke on "Developing the Farmstead." Both the horticultural society and the home economics division were present at this meeting.

Rural Economics Session.

The Rural Economics session of the Nebraska Crop Growers association was held Tuesday afternoon at the agricultural college. Frank D. Tomson gave an address on "Cotton Belt Lands as an Investment." Mr. Tomson's address was followed by a discussion of the topic by P. L. Gaddis, of the Lincoln Joint Stock Land bank. Mr. Gaddis presented statistics on the price of improved land, the increase in population of the United States, and the increase and decrease in price of products from 1850 to 1924.

T. A. Kiesselbach of the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment bureau introduced the subject, "Winter Wheat Production in Nebraska." He illustrated his talk with slides presenting data gathered from experiments conducted by the bureau on seed, cultivation by citing actual conditions existing in Hamilton county.

The discussion was continued by J. H. Claybaugh, county agent of Clay county. He offered opinions which he had collected from farmers, grain dealers and others, concerning the best varieties of wheat together with the most successful methods of cultivation and harvesting in Nebraska.

and harvesting of wheat. Ray Camp, county agent of Hamilton county, opened the discussion on "Winter Wheat Production in Nebraska," illustrating his remarks

Home Economics Division.

The general theme for the Nebraska home economics association program is "Making the Most of the Farm Home." All the speakers Tuesday afternoon spoke directly to some phase of this subject. Much of the music was such as children love. The attendance increased considerably over that of the morning until the hall on the third floor of the agricultural college was well filled.

Music is being made an important feature of the programs. The short musical programs given at the beginning of each session are in charge of Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, director of music for the University of Nebraska. Tuesday morning Oscar Bennett gave a fine song recital, accompanied by Mrs. Raymond, and in the afternoon Miss Doris Ellinger and Miss Fleda Graham, both from the Gutzmer studio, furnished a program. Miss Ellinger sang a group of three soprano solos to the piano accompaniment of Miss Graham, and then took the higher part in a duet from Cadman's "Shanweis," sung with Miss Graham.

The president, Mrs. C. B. Noyes, of Waterloo, announced the personnel of committees on nominations and resolutions to report at the business session Thursday morning. The nominating committee is as follows: Mary Ellen Brown, of Lincoln; Mrs. Snacker, of Scottsbluff, and Mrs. Donohue of Clay county. The committee on resolutions is composed of Mrs. George Endres of Johnson county, Mrs. Yates of Hall county and Mrs. F. Atwood of Lancaster county.

"The Nation's Measure of a Home," was the subject of Miss Bess Rowe, field editor of the "Farmer's Wife," of St. Paul, Minn.

A blackboard was used by Ivan D. Wood of the agricultural extension service in presenting the subject, "Planning the Farmstead." He drew a diagram of typical farm premises and also those with the most improved conditions. Mr Wood said the saving of steps was one of the important things to be considered.

C. H. Diggs of the agricultural extension service at Ames, Ia., spoke on "Flowers, Shrubs and Trees for the Farm Home." He spoke of the need of trees as windbreaks, the varieties of most value, and other phases of farm landscape gardening.

Iredale VanValin filed a divorce action against Floyd VanVaun in the district court Tuesday afternoon charging cruelty and non support. The couple were married in Tekamah, November 2, 1899. They have two children nearly grown, whose custody is sought by the mother.

EVERY MEMBER PRESENT

HOUSE ROLL CALL SHOWS 100 PER CENT PRESENT.

Employes Lists Approved and Some Preliminaries Attended to at First Session.

The house membership, one hundred per cent strong, responded to roll call Tuesday noon for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization. Adjournment was taken with one of the several special committees still out. This was the committee of three named to confer with a like committee from the senate to arrange for a joint session to canvass the vote and hear the governor's budget message. Wilson of Dawes, Regan of Platte and Newmyer of Harland, members of the arrangement group, trailed in long after the house had adjourned to 10 a. m. Wednesday. They brought word that it was the governor's wish that his message be delivered at 2 p. m. Wednesday. The committee will so report to the house Wednesday morning.

A committee instructed to notify the governor that the house was organized and ready for any and all business, experienced considerable difficulty in finding the executive in his new quarters. After wandering about for several minutes, the committee was approached by one who had given more or less study to the lay of the land. He volunnteered to assist in the finding of executive quarters. Those who lost their way were Sarah T. Muir, chairman of the committee, and Representatives O'Malley, Higgins, Bock and Miner. The committee reported back to the house that the governor sent greetings and also word that he had no message to present at that time.

The election of Allen G. Burke as speaker of the house was made unanimous on motion of, Henry Bock of David City, minority candidate. Burke received 62 votes and Bock 38. Party lines were exact. The only surprising vote being cast by Axtell of North Platte, progressive who sat in democratic caucus Monday night and took a more or less prominent part. Mr. Axtell cast his vote for the majority candidate as did Wilber S. Waite, another progressive and Obed Raasch, listed as a republican but who two years ago voted generally with the democratic minority.

Speaker Burke made a good impression with his maiden speech. He said in part:

"My aim at all times will be toward fairness and impartiality. Any man can be a good sport when he wins. It takes a good, red-blooded American to be a good sport when he loses. My opponents in the contest for the speakership have proved that they are of the red-blooded American type. I want to urge that there be introduced only such bills as are necessary, that we repeal as much useless legislation as possible and that the session be snappy and full of life from start to finish. My wish is that you be guided by your oath of office and that you serve to the best of your ability regardless of political affiliation."

The new speaker received a big hand as did James A. Rodman, chairman of the temporary organization and runner-up in the race for speakership. Probably the biggest hand was given Mabel A. Gillespie, democrat of Gretna, first woman ever to take the oath of legislator in Nebraska. Sarah T. Muir of Lancaster, was the first republican woman to take such oath. Clara C. Humphrey of Mullen, was the third woman to take the oath. She also is a republican.

Officers of the house, selected in caucus Monday night, were elected by acclamation and took the oath of office at one time. In addition to Chief Clerk Frank P. Corrick, the list includes the following:

First assistant: F. M. Stapleton, Lincoln.
Second assistant: Bert Morledge, Hastings.
Chaplain: J. G. Stannard, University Place.
Sergeant-at-arms: George W. Bivens, Juniata.
Assistant sergeant-at-arms: J. W. Lundy, Sargent.

On motion of Byrum of Franklin, the committee on committee membership nominated in republican caucus, was made permanent. The parent of all committees consists of the following republicans:

J. C. Gilmore, Adams, chairman.
First district: Harrington and Munn of Lancaster.
Second: Dyball and Kuppinger of Douglas.
Third: Winget of Thurston, and Johnson of Antelope.
Fifth: Ough of Dundy, and McLellan of Hall.
Sixth: Miner of Buffalo, and Barbour of Scotts Bluff.
Fourth: Harvey Exam of Gage and E. Preston Bailey of Thayer.

Representative Bock, minority floor leader, took Chairman Gilmore to one side and asked what sort of arrangement will be made by the party in power in regard to minority committee appointments.

Rev. D. H. Dow opened the forty-third house session with prayer. Secretary of State Pool called the body to order. James A. Rodman was the unanimous choice for chairman o fthe temporary organization. The committee on credentials consisted of Essam, Reader, Muir, O'Malley and Gillespie. The committee reported al members to have been properly elected.

Representatives Bailey, McLellan and O'Gara constituted a committee to wait upon the chief justice and to request his presence to administer the oath of office to each of the newly elected members.

The house voted to function under the 1923 rules until such time as it may adopt other rules.

Representatives Bailey, Dyball, Yochum, Wright and O'Gara were instructed as a committee to notify the senate that the house was organized and ready for business.

Rossiter of DeWitt offered a resolution congratulating the women members of the house. Miss Muir expressed appreciation on behalf of the women. Johnson of Antelope, Staats, Wildman, Bock and Stone were named as a committee to escort the speaker elect to the chair. Densmore moved that copies of the Nebraska statutes be distributed among the membership, officers and newspaper reporters. The house officially o. k.'d the following employe list as reported by Densmore, chairman of the employes' committee.

VETERAN MINISTER DIES

Rev. Charles C. Harms Passes Aaway Tuesday Afternoon at His Home.

Rev. Charles C. Harms, seventy-nine years old, passed away Tuesday afternoon at his home at 2255 E street. He has been in the Methodist ministry for fifty-three years and was pastor of the Second Methodist church until his retirement, five years ago. He was superintendent of the Lincoln district of the Methodist church from 1881 to 1885. This position was limited to a four year term at that time.

He was born and raised at Red Cloud, Ill., near where he was a circuit rider, holding several charges in the clergy. He was a graduate of Central Wesleyan college. He came to Lincoln in 1878 from Wathena, Kas., where he had held a pastorate. In 1891 he left Lincoln and held charges at Lyona, Kas., St. Joseph, Mo., and Clatonia, Neb., removing to Lincoln in 1901.

He is survived by a wife, Martha, and eight children: Dr. Charles W., Alma L., Charlotte E., Esther M., Lydia P., Ruby C., and Ruth O., of Lincoln and Dr. A. O., of Kansas City. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Second Methodist church. Burial will be at Wyuka.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Among those from Nebraska who secured marriage licenses in Council Bluffs Tuesday were John Barton and Betty Hovermale, Fred Schneider and Helen Preston, all of Lincoln.

Word has been received in Lincoln of the marriage of Miss Blanche Clemmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Clemmons of Havelock, to Charles A. Mitchell, formerly of Fremont. The wedding took place Tuesday at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York city. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell attended the University of Nebraska, where Mrs. Mitchell is a member of Chi Omega. Mr. Mitchell is a graduate and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi and Innocents. They will live in New York city, where Mr. Mitchell is executive secretary of the national organization of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Miss Maude Watts, who came to Lincoln Sunday to be the guest of Mrs. George W. Bonnell for a few days, will leave Wednesday to go to her home in Ontario. Miss Watts is owner of a summer hotel at Savoy, S. D., and included among her Lincoln friends are many of the people who spend their summers in the Black Hills. Several informal social affairs have complimented Miss Watts during her visit in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Smith, who were graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1921 and who are making their home in Cambridge, Mass., while Mr. Smith is attending a theological college, are living in the home of Basil King this winter while Mr. and Mrs. King are abroad. Their address is 1 Berkeley street. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Conner of Lincoln, who are now living in New Haven, Conn., while Mr. Conner is attending Yale, spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Henrietta Stahl.

One of the most delightful social affairs of the new year was given by Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Bailey at the Country club on Tuesday evening, when they entertained at a dinner musicale. The guests, who numbered one hundred and ten, found their places at three long tables, with a different color scheme predominating on each. Yellow, rose and violet were chosen for the decorations. A bowl of calendulas adorned one table, with roses on another, and violets on the third, with all tapers of corresponding hues. The place cards were in the form of programs for the piano recital by Floyd Robbins, who has recently concentrated his efforts in Lincoln after maintaining studios in Kansas City and Lincoln for several years. After the dinner the guests were seated in the lounge where a grand piano was placed. This was a comparatively new arrangement but it showed that this part of the club had been well planned for the music was heard in much comfort. The enjoyment of the guests was heightened by descriptions of the selections given by the pianist. The formal program was as follows: Variations, Mozart, Etude, Opus, 10, No. 12, Chopin; Prelude, Opus, 28, No. 16, Chopin; Meditation, Tschaikowsky; Danse, Debussy; Gnossienne, Erik Satie; Lento, Cyril Scott; Etude de Concert, Sternberg.

SOME MIDDLE-AGED WOMEN ARE AILING ALL THE TIME

Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. Mayer Tell Women How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Them at This Trying Period

MRS. ELSIE ACKERMAN
CONVOY, OHIO

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.

Mrs. Mayer's Experience

Litchfield, Conn.—"I have given your medicine a fair trial (I am on my fifth bottle) and can truthfully say that it has helped me. I am at the Change of Life and was not able to sleep nights, had indigestion, palpitation of the heart, pains in my right and left sides (more so if I hurried), had a rapid beating in my left ear and dreaded to see night come. I felt smothered if I lay on my left side, I had gas dreadfully, at times felt as if some one had me by the throat, had hot waves through me and sometimes I would shake in spells of nervousness. I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot praise it enough. 'I can say it does all it claims to do and I can recommend it to my friends. I can sleep much better, the pains in my sides are gone, I am not so nervous, my digestion is much better, and I very seldom have the hot waves. I must say that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine for women's ills and I will answer letters from women asking about it."—Mrs. JOSEPH MAYER, SR., Box 36, Litchfield, Connecticut.

Secretary Shumway of the department of agriculture superintended the dumping of 150 bottles of contraband liquor Wednesday at the capitol. His department has moved from the old capitol to the new and he did not consider it safe to leave the "pizen" in the old building where strangers might have access to it. Members of the legislature meet in session daily near the liquor in the old building. The samples destroyed were those submitted to the department for chemical analysis.

Charles Penn, convicted in Merrick county on a charge of breaking into the home of Della Rush in the night time and beating and bruising her with the intent to ravish her, filed an appeal in supreme court Wednesday. He was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary. He claims that he did not have a preliminary hearing, that the court erred in permitting certain testimony of Steve Lamb to go to the jury without the fact being brought out that he had told different stories at his two appearances on the stand, and because of errors in instructions. The assault was alleged to have occurred June 26, last.

CHAPPELL ON NEW COURT

Judge Tells Pahtfinders He Hopes Police Court Is Permanently Abolished.

"This is the last day of the police court in Lincoln," Judge Chappell of the new municipal court told the Pathfinder club Wednesday, "and I hope it is permanently a thing of the past. Police courts the country over have fallen into disrepute, and for cause."

Judge Chappell cited some instances and then went on to praise the Lincoln police force and the administration of the department. He explained the workings of the new court, which takes the place of the justice courts and includes what has been the police court.

This was the first day of the attendance and stunt contest between Cats and Dogs. The Cat's displayed a banner with their emblem on it, and the Dog stunt was music during the meal by a player piano. Later Thurlow Lieurance described how the song, "By the Waters of Minnetonka" was evolved from an Indian melody, and Miss Frances Gettys sang it, with player accompaniment and a violin obligato by Fred Cardin. Miss Gettys also sang "I Want To Be Happy."

JUSTICE COURTS ARE CLOSED HERE

Opening of the New Municipal Court Under Judge Chappell Ends Terms for Justices.

Wednesday marked the closing of the justice courts conducted by Justice W. A. Hawes in the Little building and by W. T. Stevens in the Brownell block. Justice Stevens' tenure of service was almost unbroken for a period of eighteen years, while Justice Hawes had held his position for almost a decade.

On the fourth floor of the city hall, Judge Chappell's new municipal court created by action of the last state legislaiure, stands in readiness to continue uninterrupted the combined functions of the two justice courts and police court, all three of which the municipal court replaces and succeeds.

The first session of the municipal court opens Thursday morning with Judge Chappell presiding. The closing of the two justice courts takes place Wednesday afternoon.

Much speculation has been caused by the possible addition of a second judge on the municipal bench. Such action would come thru the legislature. Some legal speculators hold that one court will become swamped with the volume of business to be transacted, and assert that a second judge will be necessary. Others believe there will be no more business than Judge Chappell will have time to dispose of. The new court therefore, being the first of its kind in Lincoln, is attracting interest as a kind of experiment. A similar court operating in Omaha is declared to be successful.

Reduces Figures Paid to Stenographers and Clerks in Chief Clerk's Office.

Over some protest the house Wednesday afternoon adopted a report from the employes committee, presented by Chairman Densmore, which fixes the wages to be paid during the session to all employes.

Clerks and stenographers in the office of the chief clerk are to be paid $5 a day instead of $6 as two years ago, and bill clerks, custodians and doorkeepers $4, instead of $5.

The other wages are as two years ago, as follows:

Head of engrossing room, $6 and $5 for bookkeeper, proof readers, bill clerks, janitors, messengers, mail carrier and postmaster.

Committee clerks $4 a day, and pages $3. Six days shall constitute a week's work, with no overtime save for proof readers.

It was hinted there would be some resignations because of the outs.

The committee on the inaugural was announced to consist of Senators Wiltse, Illian and Purcell and Representatives Wilson, Keyes and Wildman.

FIVE HURT IN A WRECK

ENGINE, BAGGAGE CARS AND COACHES DROP.

Plunge Over Twenty-Foot Embankment Near Gross, Mich., a Few Rods West of Trestle Over River.

GROSS, Mich., an. 7.—Five persons were injured—none believed seriously—when two coaches and a baggage car left the rails and plunged over a twenty-foot embankment eight miles west of here today.

Among the injured were T. J. McCann, Minneapolis; James Encg, Minneapolis and A. L. Bodway, Hermansville, Mich.

Steel coaches used on the train saved the lives of the passengers. Many persons were taken to private homes here suffering from shock but most were able to leave a few hours later when a relief train arrived. Traffic was again normal over the railroad, officials said.

There was little disorder following the crash, trainmen said. Passengers calmly crawled out of the coaches with the aid of fellow passengers.

The engine and coaches left the rails a few rods west of a trestle crossing Escanaba river, eight miles from here, and rolled and slid down the steep twenty-foot embankment.

Ambulances and private automobiles sent from here were bringing injured people to private homes while more serious cases were hurried to hospitals at Escanaba.

A broken switch rail was believed to have caused the wreck.

rather late in getting started in the morning. President Keefe of Walthill will not arrive in Lincoln until later, so Vice President L. R. Leonard of Scottsbluff presided.

The main number was the report by C. B. Steward, secretary of the Nebraska state farm bureau federation, which was followed by the appointment of various committees. About 100 were present.

The honey producers were rather slow in getting started and were not called to order until 10 o'clock with thirty present.

President E. G. Maxwell of Omaha presided. Professor Whelan acted as secretary in the absence of F. M. Parsons.

The president called on those present to give talks on their personal experiences. J. G. Jessup, Council Bluffs, Ia., talked on "The Successful Wintering of Bees."

O. E. Timm, Bennington, discussed "The South as a Source of Supply of Bees and Queens." J. H. Wagner of Central City told of the work of the agricultural department at Washington, D. C. The meeting closed with a business session and after a brief recess met in the home economics building for lunch.

The farm bureau federation meetings in which both men and women are interested, furnished one of the most important features of the day. The many clubs and projects for the improvement of farm life and home conditions have extended the interests of rural women into fields formerly dominated by men farmers.

The meeting of the state dairymen which opened Wednesday morning has the largest attendance in the history of the association.

The advanced registration for the farmers' family fun feed to be held in agricultural hall Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. threatened before noon to exhaust the capacity of the hall in the agricultural engineering building. The attendance for the dinner will be limited to 584.

home-making, including recreation, were reported. In some districts women go as far as ten miles to meetings. In Custer county, the fifteen clubs were reported to have had an attendance of 1,161 women.

The conference was followed by a talk by Miss Buchanan on bringing up the family musically. She began with the rocking of the baby to sleep with good music. The talk dealt with the training of the ear to the appreciation of music and not with the making of musicians. She illustrated ways in which the mother can cultivate the taste with simple songs, beginning with rhythmic games and leading up to the hearing of standard music. She suggested that various instruments be studied thru the phonograph. In the community singing led by Miss Buchanan, she has been teaching the women little songs suitable to children.

Following a talk on stories and handwork for the pre-school child in the home by Miss Roberta Spain of the University of Nebraska, the farm delegates and others interested met for a box luncheon over which home problems were again discussed.

Find Box Car Sweethearts Sleeping on Stairs Here

Harry Yapp, seventeen, and Ruth Dawson, nineteen, win the hand-embroidered foot-warmers, for being the most intrepid "fresh air" sleepers on record this season at police headquarters.

Officer Roper, making his early rounds in the chill morning Wednesday, found the pair huddled together in a stairway on Thirteenth between O and P streets. He disturbed their slumbers long enough to register them at headquarters, where they were given beds in the hoose-gow and held for investigation.

They arrived in Lincoln from "Somewhere in Wyoming" via side-door pullman, they told police. The last lap of the journey from Alliance was made in a refrigerator car, they said. Harry declared he sought employment in various towns on the way here, and came to Lincoln in order to find work to enable he and his companion to marry.

Both appear to be ruggedly healthy and evidently suffered no illness from exposure. After a change from their traveling raiment, they appeared to good advantage.

four sisters and a brother are living. She has about a dozen university co-eds under her chaperonage at the French house.

Friends of Miss Palmer believe the tragedy resulted from a lover's quarrel. Miss Palmer and Bernard have been sweethearts for a considerable length of time, it was stated.

Bernard came to the house shortly after 9 a. m. and was shown into the living room. Miss Palmer joined him there a moment later. Ten minutes later the crash of revolver shots was heard and Miss Palmer was found on the couch, while Bernard's body was on the floor near by.

Miss Palmer, who lived in La Crosse, Wis., has been an instructor in the romance language department for the past two years. Three years ago she was seriously injured in an automobile accident in which a co-ed was killed.

Physicians have given up hope for the girl's recovery. Examination showed that the two bullets entered beneath the left lung.

Attorney Robert H. Stoll, representing Shepherd, denounced the Olson testimony as "a vile insinuation" and said action would be taken. Shepherd will return here for further examination if necessary, Stoll said.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 7.—Judge Olson's latest insinuation results from a disordered mind, William D. Shepherd, foster-father of Billy McClintock, said here today.

Shepherd arrived here from Chicago last night where he had been called in connection with the death of his ward, the "millionaire orphan."

He denied there was anything wrong with his visits to Dr. Oscar Olson, and said he and the doctor had been intimate friends for nine years.

SIX AND SIX NEEDS HELP

MONTE MUNN HUST HAVE A SPECIAL TYPE DESK.

Member of Lancaster Delegation Builds up Play Counter by Placing House Journals Under the Legs.

Six and Six Monte Munn couldn't climb under his desk in representative hall. The only way he could shove his knees forward was by sitting on the floor. It is a double desk. His desk-mate is W. H O'Gara, scrappy democrat about half Monte's size.

The double desk has eight legs. In order to build it up so that he could come within scratching distance, Monte placed a 1923 house journal under each leg. Each volume is about six inches deep. The elevated desk works fine for Monte but O'Gara is required to reach up for his books and papers as tho he were pulling on a bell rope.

The Wednesday morning house session introduced much discussion over insignificent topics. The per capita postage ante was tilted from a dime to two-bits without comment. This means an increase of $15 a day over two years ago. Members draw their postage the same as their salaries. In response to a query, Chief Clerk Corrick said that his office could stamp and mail all letters for members if such arrangement were desired. Such an arrangement, it is assumed, would save the state considerable on the postage bill. Members, however, will continue doing their own licking and posting.

An argument came over the number of daily house journals to be mailed out for each member. A proposal to fix the limit at twenty per member was attacked by amendment. An attempt to fix the maximum at ten was voted down while an amendment to make five the limit was sustained. Representative Reece wanted to know if any member had evidence which would indicate that any one has ever read a house journal. Representative Bailey offered the proof.

The first petition to appear before the Forty-third session of the Nebraska house came from the sand hill country. Petitioners desire certain changes in the law fixing open and closed seasons on fur bearing animals.

The second petition or resolution came from Herbert Beaver Post 736, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Wahoo. The communication urges that Governor Bryan, in his retiring message, suggest a joint resolution looking to submission of a referendum vote on the soldier bonus. It also suggests that Governor McMullen consider the matter in connection with his message.

REFUSE RUTHENBERG BAIL

Michigan Supreme Court Will Not Allow Red Leader Out on Bond.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 7.—The Michigan supreme court today refused to admit Charles F. Ruthenberg, prominent "red" leader convicted of violating the state syndicalism law, to bail pending appeal in the United States supreme court.

The state court also refused a writ of error on the final judgment of the Berrein county circuit court holding decisions of Michigan courts were not subject to further appeal.

Ruthenberg is being held in jail at St. Joseph pending transfer to state prison at Jackson where he is sentenced to serve from 3 to 10 years for violating the state syndicalism law by participating in the communist party convention at Bridgeman, Mich., in August, 1922.

THE LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL.

The student body is to vote Friday morning on whether or not the "point" system should be installed at Lincoln high school. This system limits the number of activities in which a student shall be allowed to participate. This action has been taken partly because parents are complaining to the school authorities that their children take so much interest in school activities besides their studies that their grades are being seriously affected. Another reason is that many of the students do not like the idea of one person holding so many positions when there are others who do nothing at all.

A committee composed of three members of the student council and four of the faculty have turned in a proposed rating of activities. All offices are divided into three groups according to the amount of time and work they require. They are classified as A, B, or C offices. It has been suggested that students be allowed to hold one of the following combinations of jobs: One A and one B: an A and two C's: two B's and a C: three C's.

Class A activities are those which would occupy more than ninety hours each semester outside of school. Senior and junior class presidents would come under this rating as well as president of the student council

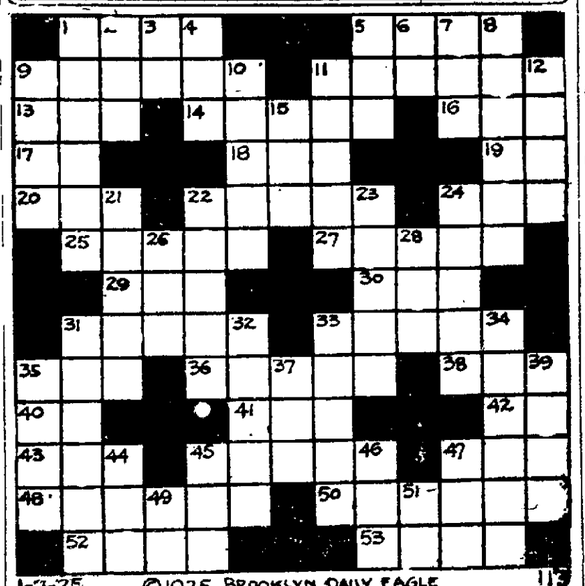

The exceptions to this regulation would be the captain of the team of the sport that is then in season and one member of the Advocate staff These hold ex-officio positions on the student council. The highest girl officer of the student council is also president of the All-Girl's league and she is also exempted.

If any home room objects to the plan they are to be prepared to submit a constructive plan to its place.

HAS 87 PER CENT OF CARS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The United States manufactured 3,625,000 automobiles and trucks in 1924, according to preliminary figures given out by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the national automobile chamber of commerce. Of the total 3,000,000 were trucks. These figures on general output represent a decrease of 10 per cent from 1923, but an increase of 38 per cent over 1922. Of the new cars, 39 per cent were closed cars. The wholesale value of the 1924 output was $2,279,096,000, to which may be added $45,000,000 tire production; also parts and accessories to the wholesale value of $872,838,000. There are now registered in the United States approximately 17,000,000 automobiles, of which 1,800,000 are trucks. The world registration of automobiles is 19,500,000, so that 87 per cent of the autos in the world are in the United States. Of the total registration of motor vehicles, 4,600,000 are on farms.

COMMITTEE WILL REPORT

Dramatic Arts Club Selection of the Three Golden Plays to Be Made.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln dramatic arts club, which will be a dinner at 6 o'clock Thursday evening at the University club, the committee appointed to pass on the plays submitted in the John Golden competition will make its report. Miss Alice Howell will read the play which the committee has selected as the best and which is to be sent to New York where it will be considered by a second committee of the national coterie of dramatic critics, who will select a number of promising plays from which the committee of final award will choose three plays to be presented by Mr. Golden in New York. The committee which is judging the plays submitted in Lincoln is composed of Adrian Newens. Miss Alice Howell, and Miss Elizabeth Cather. Mr. Newens will receive reservations for the dinner by phone early Thursday morning.

FARMERS FAMILY FUN FEED

Annual Event at the State Agriculture College to Be Given This Evening.

The annual farmers' family fun feed will be held Wednesday evening at 5:30 at the agricultural engineering building, with Dean E. A. Burnett of the agricultural college presiding.

The number admitted will be limited because of lack of room and only 584 will be served. There are but a few tickets left and these are in the hands of agriculture college men at the various meetings.

The "feed" will be prepared in the agriculture college kitchen and served by agriculture students under the direction of the home economics department.

Anyone is welcome at the program after the banquet. The program is in charge of Professors Wood, Stewart and Posson of the agricultural college and they promised a program of "dry stunts and serious thoughts." There will be slides, music and an original play by the faculty men

It already has nearly 1,000 charter members. Hamlin Garland is chairman of the club's committee on admissions. Among others on the same committee are Winthrop Ames, Irving Bacheller, Ellis Parker Butler, Henry S Canby, Rachel Crothers, John Farrar Mrs John W Alexander, Mrs Simon Guggenheim Mrs James Loeb Laidlaw, Thomas W Lamont, Edith Wharton Matthison Ogden Mills, Mrs. Jacob A. Riis and Francis H. Sisson.

FURNACE BLAST SMASHES GLASS

"Dick" Ohler Was Singed Slightly in an Explosion at the University Publishing Company.

No certain explanation was found to account for an explosion of furnace gases at 9 a. m. Tuesday morning in the basement of the University Publishing company building, 1126 Q street. Compression of air caused by the explosion in the closed basement shattered a large plate glass window, valued at several hundred dollars, in the front of the building. A frosted glass panel in an inner door was also smashed to bits.

"Dick" Ohler, sales manager, was standing near the furnace when the flames surged out of the draught doors in front. His hair was singed slightly and he suffered only slight burns about the face. Charles Hall, department manager, who was also standing near, was unhurt. There was no fire damage and firemen who arrived promptly to give assistance were not needed.

It is supposed that the fan on the automatic mechanism of the oil burner failed to work, allowing an accumulation of gas given off by the burning oil to ignite. The damage to windows was covered by insurance.

SWAT AT BLUE SKY LAW

Legislative Committee of Omaha Chamber of Commerce to Ask Part Repealed.

OMAHA, Jan. 7.—The legislative committee of the chamber of commerce today recommended that the Nebraska "blue sky law" under which a corporation must secure the approval of the state board of securities before it can sell stock in the state, be repealed.

The chief objections voiced by the committee to the law are:

1—That it is an absolute failure in protecting small investors from purchasing fraudulent stocks.

2—That it enables fraudulent concerns to operate under sanction of law.

3—That it discourages legitimate corporations wishing to do business in the state.

THOM FEARFUL FOR ROAD

Says C. M. & St. Paul Will Go Into Receivership If Interest Rate Is Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The C. M and St P. railway will go into receivership, June 1 if congress does not adopt pending legislation to reduce interest charged by the government on its $55,000,000 loan, Alfred H. Thom general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives told the United States interstate commerce commission. He proposed 4 3 4 per cent as a fair interest The railroad now pays 6 per cent

Chairman Smith announced consideration of the pending measure would be undertaken soon

President Coolidge, in recognizing what he called "the influence and significance" of the meeting of the council of church boards of education, sent his "greetings and best wishes" today to Dr R. L. Kelly executive secretary.

ALLOWED TO FIX TABLES

COMMISSION GIVES EXPRESS COMPANY AUTHORITY.

Chambers of Commerce Had No Objections and New Schedule of Distances Between Stations Permitted.

The state railway commission Wednesday gave authority to the American Railway Express company to amend its table of distances between stations in the state of Nebraska, by providing the note and distances shown in the order. This application when allowed will provide specific distances via junction points on lines of railroad over which the American Railway Express company does not now handle the milk and cream business.

This application had been submitted to a number of the larger chambers of commerce and there were no objections to the allowing of the application. Under it the express company is authorized and directed to establish, effective not later than thirty days from the date of this order, the tololwing:

"(h) In addition to the distances and junction points shown on pages 3 and 4, the following junction points and distances may be used to figure thru mileages to Lincoln, Neb., from points in Nebraska on the C. St. P. M. & O. railway, Missouri Pacific railroad and Union Pacific railroad in accordance with 'instructions for calculating mileage, on page 1 of tariff:

Junction Point	Distance	Via.
Blair, Neb.	75.8	C. & N. W. Ry.
Fremont, Neb. ..	52.0	C. & N. W. Ry.
Hastings, Neb. ..	97.0	C. B. & Q. Ry.
Norfolk, Neb. ...	132.9	C. & N. W. Ry.

Nebraska City—Because several citizens drove over the fire hose and were detained at the city hall after a recent fire here, the city commissioners have asked the city attorney to draw an ordinance providing a penalty in such cases.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

On Fear Fighting.

A friend of mine was hurt in an automobile accident last fall which was the result of the car's skidding on wet roads. That no one was seriously injured was considered a miracle as the car turned over on its side in the ditch.

As my friend bruised and aching in bed the next day with cuts on her head and a wrenched shoulder, her husband and her son came to the bedside and doubtfully broached the subject of a trip to which they had been looking forward for several days. A friend of the family, a man who loved to drive at a faster pace than is safe had offered to take the two to one of the world series base ball games in a city some 50 miles away.

And She Had Her Reward.

"It looks like rain," her husband said, "and of course you'd be nervous after this shock, so if it's going to upset you too much, John and I won't go. We don't want you to be worried."

"I wouldn't spoil your fun for worlds," said my friend. "Of course you'll go, only ask Ned to drive carefully, won't you."

She told me afterwards that the relief and gratitude on the faces of her men folk was her reward. "You're a brick, Mary," said her husband. "I thought you'd be scared to death to let us go."

It Might Have Handicapped The Family.

"Of course I was scared," she said to me. "They'll never know just how hard it was to let them go, nor how I had to fight down my anxiety when they were later getting home than I expected. But I just had the thing out with myself I just said: 'Now look here. Are you going to let this accident hang over you and the rest of the family for all time or are you going to be sensible about it?' And I figured out that accidents like that don't happen often and it wasn't at all likely that the whole family would get smashed up all in one week. Things don't average up that way. Lightning seldom strikes twice in the same place."

Just an instance of the way one woman exercised the demon of fear. But a very sensible way, don't you think?

"John B. looks at me awful envious when I'm in my football suit", said a lad I know. "Gosh, I feel sorry for the poor guy His mother won't let him play for fear he'll get hurt."

And there was my neighbor at the beach last summer who wouldn't let any of her family go out in a boat because her brother was drowned when he was a child.

We worry so much over what may be, when the chances are just as good and probably better that it may not be. Remember the old story of the epitaph found in an old country grave yard. "He had many worries in his life most of which never happened."

Tomorrow—On Ordering One's Life

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, will fight in New York next summer, Dan McKetrick, regarded as his eastern manager, said.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs. R. S. B.: Perhaps some water in the eight ounce bottle of milk would make it more digestible to the baby at this period when undoubtedly she is being upset by teething. When a baby shows that it is temporarily indisposed it is wise always to reduce the strength of the food and go easy on the rest of the diet until the indisposition is past.

Mrs. A. E. F.: Most infants hiccough a lot, also sneeze, and sometimes cough. Any of these things, unacommpanied by any other more alarming symptoms, such as fever, a runny nose, colic or cold, are of little consequence. For the hiccoughs a tablespoon of cool water given in teaspoon amounts will likely stop it.

Fog Horn: Your letter destined for another department was delivered to me and as you have no address on it. I cannot return it to you. Won't you write the other doctor again and explain your ailment which no doubt is a nervous affection.

Mrs. P. J. S.: I think it is a mistakes to give so young a baby farina when it is plain that she is already too full. I should nurse less often and give a tablespoon of water before a nursing and cut down the nursing period to five to ten minutes. The water sounds like a simple remedy for persistent vomiting, but it works very well in most cases.

Mrs. M. L. T.: The twin boys have made a marvelous gain. If they seem to be dissatisfied with their food now it would be a good thing to give them each part of a bottle feeding after each nursing. Or particularly those nursings after which they seem to desire a feeding before the next regular period.

WALT MASON

Sane Government.

Calvin talks of common sense, of economy and thrift, with an earnestness intense, and my voice in praise I lift; to reduce the fierce expense let's resort to every shift. I am tired of statesmen grand dealing in poetic tosh, talking of our happy land, springing bunk that will not wash, while the taxes they demand all our hopes and purses squash. I am tired of digging up for the tax collecting gent paying taxes on my pup, on my tomahawk and tent; I have drunk the bitter cup till my patience all is spent. I am selfish and I'm sick of idealistic schemes; I'm a poor hardworking hick and I have no faith in dreams, in the statesmap with a brick that with tawdry tinsel gleams. I applaud this Calvin wight who is saying every day: "While the sun is shining bright, let the nation put up hay; wasteful spending isn't right—let us salt the rocks away." That's a better line of talk than the bombast we have heard, all the threadbare boasts in stick of our eagle, dreary bird, and our bulwarks, white as chalk, and palladiums absurd. I am glad to see a man in the presidential chair who to every wasteful plan gives a stern and frozen stare, saying always: "In a can put the coin and keep it there!" I applaud this Calvin swain, who would see the spendthrift fade, who confesses to a pain in his larboard shoulderblade when extravagance insane by officialdom's displayed.

GROWTH OF FARMING.

WINNIPEG, Man., (By mail)—Growth of agriculture since 1920 has added 7,623,490 acres of land to the area under field crops in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, according to the department of agriculture. This was an increase of 211 per cent over the land under cultivation in this area in 1900.

TO MAKE DIVORCE EASIER.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—A bill now before the legislation commission of the French senate would facilitate the granting of divorces and permit separated couples to found new homes. The measure, sponsored by Senator Louis Martin is designed as a corrective for the dwindling birthrate of the country. At present, in cases where separation has been allowed by the courts, it is necessary to wait three years before filing a demand that the separation be made permanent, the principle being that ample time should be given the parties to effect a reconciliation. Senator Martin argues that if reconciliation does not occur during two years, it is not likely that another year's separation will bring the couple together and he recommends the automatic pronouncement of absolute divorce in all such cases.

The Israelite House of David, located at Benton Harbor, Mich., was denied a rehearing by the supreme court of the case instituted against it in the lower courts by John W. and Margaret Hansel of Nashville, Tenn.

HOW DO WE DO IT

People ask us how it is that our business is always good while so many others complain of dull times. Well, it is not a secret. Success begets success. Folks just naturally like to pull for the winning team. We owe considerable of our success to our advertising. We never advertise property for sale unless we think it meets with our appraisal as to value. We have just what we advertise and back up our advertising with the values, the service and the goods, and besides that we are on the job, and never misrepresent our listings. It's easy.

·Men and Things·

One of the curious things we run across is the fact that most of the chaps who believe that the solution of one of our problems lies in public ownership of utilities are also advocates of the city manager-ship plan of operating our municipalities. This is what might be called inconsistent consistency. The thing that happens when we adopt public ownership is to substitute political management for business management. Having done this we are then to hire a business man to run the whole city in order to avoid the costs of political management. Seems as tho there ought to be a shorter way to accomplish the same results.

If you think you know something about the English language, try to read and understand any of the papers that the national association for the advancement of science has just been listening to. About the third sentence you go under and never come back again. Which raises the question, why does not some one of these scientists devote his powers of research to discovering a language that will act as sort of liaison officer between the speech of the scientists and that of the ordinary person of affairs? To be of value, the results of researches of science ought to be availabue to every person and not come to the public thru the filter of a third person's thought.

Out of the depths of his many years of learning Col. Bixby declares that the adoption of a New Year's resolution to quit crabbing would add more to the happiness of the world than the discovery of a hundred gold mines. Wherein he is eminently correct. We might occupy the space set aside for these paragraphs by trying to enlighten you on the mysteries of some question of politics or economics, but we could not do you one-millionth part of the good that would follow by lifting the colonel's advice from his column to this one and then getting you to adopt it. Crabbing is largely a habit and grows out of a parctice of taking your temper out on the person nearest to you.

Medical science has definitely established by tests of undoubted authenticity the fact that the ill health and nervous condition of many persons is brought about thru poison manufactured in their systems by indulgence in fits of temper, querulouseness and faultfinding. The nausea and nervous disturbances that follow each flush of anger have been experienced by every person, so that it is not likely anyone would seek to dispute what the doctors say. Odd that persons who would shrink from imbiding stychnine or prussic acid in the smallest possible does eagerly grab at the poison phial of anger.

One of our literary wights has been digging up some interesting history of the early days of our national life and presenting it in the form of reminiscent tales of the wives of our first presidents. Not the least interesting thing about these exhumations is that the fathers of the republic were a lot of quarrelsome chaps and that the source of most of their disputes was the fact that their ambitions clashed so directly. And after they had quarreled they stopped at nothing to make life miserable for their late friends. One method consisted in finding out whom they most detested and then appointing them to some nice high office. Insofar as we, at this distance, are able to judge what goes on at Washington, they do things better now along this line.

The reaction that marked the elections of England, America and Germany has been felt in many other lands. It is there recognized as the return of common sense to the application of problems of state and government, and a repudiation of the fantastic notions and theories of the more voluble of the population. The oft-repeated phrase about Europe getting down to work again is nohting more than reaction from the foolish and the fantastic to the tried and true. The simple truths that the men and women who peopled this state acted out in their lives form the foundation stones for its present greatness, and they are as unchangeable as natural law.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says you just can't believe anything any more and now it is said that it's all a lie about Thomas A. Edison flying a kite during a thunderstorm and finding out about electricity by having the lightning run down the string.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

5 Minutes to Answer This.

I was watching two clerks who always lunch together on the "Dutch Treat" plan. It seems that the waitress was in the habit of giving them similar checks, but on this occasion the total would not "split," so she placed her bill for $1.25 ebtween them, explaining that the extra order of pie had made the amount an odd one.

"That's correct," remarked Charlie to Fred, "and you ate two of those pieces; but we were even on the rest of the spread, which amounted to 35 cents more than the three pieces of pie. I'll owe you my share of the bill."

Fred settled the score, so how much is he entitled to collect from Charlie?

Answer to Yesterday's.

From the hotel to the wayhouse was 6 miles and from there to Piketown 3 more, so if the traveler took the stage to the wayhouse and then walked to Piketown he would beat the stage 15 minutes.

HANDY RADIO CABINET MADE OF FIBER REED

Equally at Home in Sun Room or the Living Room.

By MARIAN MOORE

Perhaps it is ten o'clock in the morning, and you have tuned in on a station where some woman is telling you how to make wonderful concoctions which will keep your husband's interest in the home table continually at par, or perhaps the seven o'clock bedtime stories are amusing the kiddies just before their last good night romp; maybe it's a few hours later and you and your guests have finished your bridge game and have tuned in on some pulsating jazz, and if you are simply "radio mad," you probably often hear the clock strike two or three before you finally with reluctance tune off and go to bed.

When people found how necessary talking machines were to the household, they discovered also that such valuable affairs needed to be artistically encased, or the appearance of the living room was apt to be ruined. With a radio even more valuable to a household than a talking machine, it is all the more important that it, too, is beautifully encased, for it is usually the center of attraction at all hours of the day and night. A radio on which you can get some far-off city, or perhaps London, most certainly deserves its honorable place in the living room with a beautiful cabinet all its own.

For the Radio Fan.

I have seen cabinets of all sizes, styles and descriptions, and so probably have you, but if you want to set up your radio in a cozy grouping of fiber reed pieces why not have a cabinet of fiber reed to match? This one is very sturdily built and has a top of wood.
